Abandon Hunt For Torpedoed Mystery Ship

Greek and British Ships Fail to Find
Wreckage

NO ADDED CLUE

Navy Hydrographer
Thinks Floating Bomb
Caused Tragedy

Chatham, Mass. — (AP) — Organized search was abandoned today for the unnamed vessel which yesterday cracked out a sudden S O S, reporting she had been torpedoed near the Azores, and the beclouded affair appeared likely to be recorded as another mystery of the sea.

The Radio Marine station here reported the Greek steamer Mount Pellon had given up its search of the area named in the distress message—signed only by the unlisted letters "PECC"—some hours after the British liner Empress of Australia had abandoned the fruitless hunt. Neither vessel found any wreckage or other trace of a torpedoed ship.

Only silence greeted those who listened constantly on the international distress and calling wave for any further elucidation of the S O S. One possibility after another was abandoned by government officials and shipping men in this country and Europe as they sought to identify the vessel that might have been involved.

The British oil tanker Pecten, listed for a time as a possible victim, was discovered this morning to be afloat and untroubled, and proceeding toward her destination of Southampton, England.

Concerning the possibility that the S O S might have been a hoax, officials here said the message itself was undoubtedly genuine. They explained that the distress call was re-broadcast by other vessels after it was first picked up, as is the custom when a stricken ship is in grave danger.

The message first was received here from the American freighter Tulsa, but later a London station reported it had heard what apparently was the original broadcast. It was picked up also in the Azores.

There was no hint in the language of the distress call to indicate the nationality of the sender, as such messages are transmitted in international code.

Locate Position
Officials likewise discounted any possibility that the call might have filtered out of the area, far to the westward, where the United States fleet is now engaged in war games. They pointed out that the position given placed the danger spot about 390 miles south of the Azores and 200 miles east of New York. They added, also, that an S O S signal was of such dangerous portent that it would not have been used in a war game or anything other than a real emergency.

Radio officials expressed belief that, if the message was genuine, the fact it was not repeated indicated the vessel had plunged to the bottom immediately.

Lending credence to the affair was a report from Horta, in the Azores, by shipping officials who said officers of a vessel which reached there last Friday announced sighting two submarines of unidentified nationality in the vicinity of Fayal island, in the general area from which the S O S was sent.

BLAMES FLOATING BOMB
Washington — (AP) — Captain G. S. Bryan, the navy's chief hydrographer, expressed an opinion today that a stray floating mine may have sunk the unidentified ship which yesterday flashed it had been torpedoed in the Atlantic ocean.

Captain Bryan said the naval hydrographic office, was advised by

Psychology Studies Boys' Pockets

A census of contents of 32 normal boys' pockets, just taken in New York City, revealed a weird mass of buttons, rope, rubber darts, chalk, etc., plus an average of 19 cents in cash and eight-tenths of a handkerchief per boy. Mr. Far's we can say, the only revelation seems to be that New York boys find very few things to sneeze at. As to that, nobody would sneeze, at least not voluntarily, at the following classified want-ad from The Post-Crescent nor at the results it brought:

USED Portable Milking Machine. Tel. 9441311. Hubert Griesbach, R. 1, Appleton, Wis. 232.

France Wants Peace but Hits At 'Blackmail'

Paris Officials See Implied Support of Britain, U. S.

DALADIER SPEAKS

'We Cannot Admit Anything but Peace With Honor,' He Says

Paris — (AP) — France, with what Frenchmen considered implied American and British support, today took the firmest stand for "peace with honor" that she has adopted since Italy started the campaign for a share of French African colonies.

Premier Daladier, in a pointed address last night to the American club of Paris, made plain his government's policy of bending every reasonable effort to maintain peace but refusing to yield to "blackmail."

"We reject any idea of surrender," Daladier declared. "We cannot admit anything but peace with honor."

United States Ambassador William C. Bullitt, outlining similar ideas, gave assurance that "we feel these are war defending and we intend to defend them."

The ambassador said the United States was preoccupied with a "growing apprehension that if there should be a war in Europe, we might be drawn into it."

But Won't Speak
The strongest applause of the evening was reserved for the duke of Windsor, whom club President Max Shoop introduced with the remark that his presence gave the occasion a "triumphant" nature.

Despite shouts of "speech" the former king of Britain smilingly declined to address the club.

Prime Minister Chamberlain at that moment was quoting Shakespeare in a speech at Blackburn, England, to the effect that "come the three corners of the world in arms, and we shall shock them."

Senator Leon Berard, semi-official French envoy to the Spanish national front, crossed into Spain today for final negotiations expected to bring early French and British recognition of Generalissimo Franco's government.

Berard is to meet the nationalist foreign minister, Count Francisco Gomez Jordana, to complete talks preliminary to establishing formal diplomatic relations. These parleys were initiated after Franco's forces captured Barcelona Jan. 26.

Reports from Spain said Franco continued to move troops toward the central Spanish war front in preparation for an expected offensive against Madrid and Valencia if the government holds to its intention of further resistance.

Three Arrested At Lake Hideout

Brothers Seized by Officers of Three Counties Admit Burglaries

Chippewa Falls — (AP) — A posse led by the sheriffs of three counties raided a hideout on isolated Finley lake yesterday and captured three brothers by firing only one shot.

Deputy Sheriff Frank Klapak of Chippewa county said the trio admitted several of the 15 burglaries in which the authorities believe they were implicated.

Klapak said two or three more arrests would be made. It is known he added, that at least one more man was implicated in a ring which recently looted stores and summer cottages in northern Wisconsin towns.

The men arrested yesterday are Donald, 31; Bryan, 27; and Bernard Pippin, 30, of Redgranite.

The posse, which included Sheriff Frank J. Papp of Chippewa county, Ellsworth Wilson of Rusk county, Amund Nelson of Barron county, and District Attorney Emory P. Ellingson of Rusk county, surprised the brothers in a shed behind their shack. Although there were about 20 guns in the shack, none of the brothers was armed.

Bryan and Bernard Pippin surrendered immediately. Donald attempted to flee through deep snow into the woods. A shot over his head halted him.

Law Enforcement Officials of State United in Favor of Radio System in Order to Fight Crime

Madison — (AP) — A united front of law enforcement officials yesterday endorsed a bill to set up a state bureau of police radio communications, declaring the service would prevent crime and aid in apprehension of criminals.

The peace officers addressed the senate on state and local government in behalf of the bill introduced by Senators Bolens (D) Port Washington; Connors (D), Bryn Mawr; and Mack (R), Shiocton. It would create a five-man bureau to establish and operate radio stations for police purposes. It calls for an initial appropriation of $100,000.

Numerous police chiefs, including those of Milwaukee, Madison, Appleton, Wisconsin Rapids and Sheboygan, said 13 radio systems now operated by cities and counties

'DOING FINE'

Washington — (AP) — Thomas Corcoran, a personal adviser to President Roosevelt, was reported "doing very fine" at Emergency hospital today. He is recuperating, a hospital official said, from an appendix operation performed at Baltimore early in the month.

Senate Supports Probe of State Markets Bureau

Also Votes to Restore One
Of LaFollette Reorganization Proposals

Madison — (AP) — The senate concurred today in assembly proposals to investigate the department of agriculture and markets and to restore one of the 26 LaFollette reorganization changes repealed early in this session.

Approval of a bill by Assemblyman Rice (R) Delavan, will result in transfer of the state school for the blind at Janesville and the school for the deaf at Delavan to the department of public instruction.

The schools went back to the board of control after a blanket veto of former Governor LaFollette's governmental shifts. Rice said the department of public instruction was the proper supervising agency.

Four assemblymen sponsored the investigation of the agriculture department, which is expected to get underway within a week. It will be conducted by three members of the house and two senators still to be appointed.

The department has welcomed thorough inquiry into charges of friction among its employees and laxity in the performance of its functions.

Senate Progressives voted against the probe resolution, contending it means a waste of time and money and is only a gesture to the farm population.

A bill requiring teachers in common schools to be licensed by the superintendent of public instruction was engrossed. It was introduced by the committee on education and public welfare.

The senate passed a bill by Assemblyman Biehler (D) Belgium, prohibiting banks from operating branch stations within three instead of four miles of any other bank or its station.

Walter J. Rush (D) Neillsville, introduced a bill prohibiting hospitals wholly or partly tax exempt from excluding any person because of color, race or religion.

Five Companions of Slain Student are Ordered Expelled

Champaign, Ill. — (AP) — The five student companions of William Spurrier, University of Illinois sophomore, when he was shot fatally near a Negro resort a week ago were expelled today from the university by the disciplinary committee.

C. M. Thompson, dean of the college of commerce and chairman of the university senate disciplinary committee, made the announcement without naming the boys.

The dismissal was "for conduct prejudicial to the best interests of the university," Thompson said.

The expulsion actually only affected four of the students' since E. O. Sullivan, Jr., son of a Chicago dentist, withdrew from the university on the advice of his father, shortly after the shooting.

The four were E. W. Wirt, Warren Klutz, Jack Pierce, and John Moore. Fellow students said they already had departed for their homes.

SENATE MUST ACT

Upper House Expected to Concur in Measure
Ending Agency

Madison — (AP) — The Budlong bill abolishing the Wisconsin Development Authority was passed by the assembly today 53 to 41.

Speaker Vernon W. Thomson (R) Richland Center, left the rostrum for the first time this session to lead the attack on the department, created in 1937 under the LaFollette administration. He claimed the WDA was sponsored by a "bunch of political drum-beaters who are trying to perpetuate themselves in office," and that the farmers "didn't give a damn about the WDA."

Madison — (AP) — The Budlong bill abolishing the Wisconsin Development Authority was passed by the assembly today 53 to 41.

Speaker Vernon W. Thomson (R) Richland Center, left the rostrum for the first time this session to lead the attack on the department, created in 1937 under the LaFollette administration. He claimed the WDA was sponsored by a "bunch of political drum-beaters who are trying to perpetuate themselves in office," and that the farmers "didn't give a damn about the WDA."

"All of the services of the WDA, those that are legitimate, can be carried on by the rural electrification administration," Thomson said. "It is time to take the state out of the political propaganda business and let the true cooperative movement get ahead."

To this, Biemiller (P) Milwaukee, replied: "I still maintain the WDA is the most effective agency to promote rural electrification."

Up to Senate
Assemblyman Grobschmidt (P) Milwaukee, introduced a bill taxing gross sales and outlets of chain stores.

The bill levies $5 per store for chains of five units or less, and increases progressively to $100 per outlet for 800 or more units. The gross sales tax ranges from $4 per $1,000 on small chains to $6.80 per $1,000 on large ones.

Proceeds from the outlet tax would be returned to localities to reduce property taxes and the sales tax would be earmarked for old age assistance. The law would become effective July 1, 1939.

A bill for reciprocal agreements between states relating to registration, permit taxes, fees and licenses of motor trucks was introduced by Assemblyman Graas (R) Surgeon Bay.

Assemblyman McDowell (R) Soldiers Grove, offered a bill requiring the state to pay old age assistance, blind pensions and dependent children's aids monthly instead of quarterly.

Miners Refuse to Come to Surface

63 Stay-Underground Until
They Get Pay
They Claim Due

Hazleton, Pa. — (AP) — Sixty-three hard coal miners, protesting they had not been paid, remained deep in a Wolfe Collieries company mine at nearby Oneida for the second day today while company officials arranged to distribute current wages they said were five days overdue.

Bunches around steam pipes for warmth on levels 250 and 300 feet below the surface, the miners sent up word, however, that they intended to stay underground until they also received back pay they contended was due them for more than a year from a previous company regime.

The present operating concern was organized a year ago through bankruptcy proceedings.

The miners, comprising the day force, announced their demands at the end of the afternoon shift yesterday. A similar number of men on the night shift reported for work last night, but were sent home by company officials. Mine Superintendent Peter Boyle said no attempt would be made to operate the workings until the issue was settled.

The workers slept last night on planks gathered from various parts of the mine. Some were in a steam-heated medical station, while others built shanties around steam pipes to keep warm. State Mine Inspector William J. Bottinley said after a trip into the shaft that the men were well supplied with food.

'Sound-Proof' Walls Can't Deafen Voice Of Oshkosh Sheriff

Oshkosh — (AP) — Engineers who installed "sound-proof" doors between police radio station WAKE and the sheriff's office reckoned without Sheriff Paul Neubauer, who has a booming voice in keeping with his 6 foot 3 inch stature.

A county policeman reported he heard the sheriff via the receiving set in a squad car while patrolling near Neenah.

After being informed of what he was supposed to have said, Neubauer concluded he would have to soft-pedal his vocal apparatus.

Three Men Perish as Illinois Cabin Burns

Lacon, Ill. — (AP) — Three men were burned fatally in a fire which destroyed their cabin home near Sparland last night.

Two brothers, Michael and William Carter, perished in the blaze which Coronet J. P. Johnson said was of undetermined origin. A third man, William Hillman, escaped from the blazing structure, but died shortly before noon today.

Business Faces No Added Taxes, Morgenthau Says

Won't Talk About Revenue Bill
Until Legislature Makes Up Its Mind on How Much It Will Spend

BY JOHN W. WYNGAARD

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison, Wis. — The Heil administration will delay presentation of a revenue measure until considerably later in the legislative session, when the extent of funds needed to meet the executive budget and the additional appropriations which seem inevitable is known more definitely.

This was reported by Republican leaders today after caucus discussions of the administration's financial problem.

Significantly, Republican legislative floor-leaders have accepted the necessity for a new revenue measure in addition to the reenactment of those taxes which will expire at the end of the present biennium. Among the latter are the dividend tax, the old-age pension income surtax, and the chain store tax.

No Sales Tax
The nature, or the degree, of the new tax which the legislature will be compelled to levy is not yet known definitely, but comments from members of the Republican majority indicate that a general sales tax is not as imminent as was at first supposed.

The reenactment of the three expiring taxes will raise the $45,000,000 estimated receipts of the Heil biennium considerably, but will also be insufficient by many millions to balance the budget.

It seemed likely today that a combination of taxes would be used to supply the remainder needed.

Among the steps now being discussed at the meetings of Republican administration men in the capitol are these:

1. Passage of the sales tax on cigarettes, which would bring in several millions.

2. Revision of the normal income tax rates to increase the rates for the middle income brackets.

Filing Fee
3. Enactment of a requirement for a filing fee in order to cover the enormous administrative cost entailed by the auditing of the many thousands of income tax returns from residents who do not pay taxes.

This, it was suggested, could be graduated for all classes, so that it might also produce some extra revenue.

4. Lowering of the exemptions under the normal income tax law, ($400 for cash dependents, etc.)

5. A revision sharply upward of the present chain store tax, which brings in under present schedules only a negligible amount of revenue ($150,000 a year).

6. An entirely new tax form, a description of which is not yet available.

It was pointed out today that the details of the administration tax program may not be revealed for many more weeks. The LaFollette administration in 1937 delayed until toward the end of the legislative session its plans for revenue-raising. Technically, the administration could wait until the end of the fiscal year, July 1. According to present signs, the legislature will still be in Madison on that date.

Burglars Loot 3 Kaukauna Homes

Residences of Two Aldermen Among Dwellings Ransacked

Kaukauna — Three burglaries at Kaukauna residences were reported today as $300 were revealed this morning by Chief of Police James E. McFadden.

The residence of Joseph Derus, 807 Blackwell street, was entered Tuesday evening while the occupants were at church and articles valued at about $75 taken. Included was a wrist watch, necklace, cameo pin and diamond ring.

Chris Kinder, Jr., 207 Gertrude street, a Kaukauna alderman, did not discover until Wednesday noon that articles valued at about $175 were gone. The house was ransacked and all small articles of any value taken.

When Alderman Otto M. Ludtke, 906 Law street, returned from Tuesday's council meeting he found a going and a watch and chain missing.

The robberies appeared to be the work of outsiders, McFadden said. They gained entrance to the Derus and Kinder homes apparently through skeleton keys, while getting in Ludtke's by jimmying the door.

College Regent Dies Following Auto Crash

Stevens Point — (AP) — George H. Martens, Stevens Point attorney and teachers college regent, was injured fatally today when his car collided on Highway 10 with a Waupaca county truck.

Martens died at a hospital here shortly after the crash.

Hitchhiker, Without 'Good' Meal 10 Days, Collapses of Hunger

Waupaca — Samuel Lerbowitz, 24, Long Island, N. Y., medical student, who said he ate his last "good" meal 10 days ago, collapsed of hunger and exposure on Main street about 6:30 this morning. He is being treated at the City hospital where his condition was reported as fair this noon.

The youth said he had to quit school because of lack of funds and was hiding to Minneapolis where he was promised a job. The attending physician said he will be confined to the hospital for about three days.

Guam Spurned as House Approves Air Base Measure

Bill Sent to Senate After Final Vote of 368 to 4

Washington — (AP) — The house passed and sent to the senate today a $48,800,000 naval air base bill after stripping it of the controversial proposal to establish a base for navy scouting planes on the far away Pacific island of Guam.

Final passage of the measure, an integral part of President Roosevelt's emergency defense program, came after the house had confirmed by a roll-call vote of 285 to 168 an earlier vote to eliminate the $5,000,000 Guam project.

Final passage was on a standing vote of 368 to 4.

After three days of stormy debate on the project the house adopted by a vote of 195 to 164, an amendment by Representative Sutphin (D-N.J.) to strike the $5,000,000 Guam item from the $53,800,000 naval air base bill. Under the rules, however, there still was a chance the house might reverse its decision.

The vote came after the house leadership had made a desperate last-minute attempt to head off the bi-partisan drive against the project.

The vote of the Sulphur amendment came after Majority Leader Rayburn (D-Texas) descended to the well of the chamber and declared solemnly the United States "wants no war with anyone" and does not "covet a foot of land that belongs to anybody else."

Other developments of the day: Secretary Wallace outlined to the senate agriculture committee three possible plans for dealing with the large surplus of American cotton. They were:

To continue the present loan program and find some way to place American cotton in world markets "on a competitive basis"; a program of increasing cotton growers' income so they would give up government loans and permit a large amount of cotton to flow into domestic and foreign channels; a

Major Railroads Want Transportation Board

Washington — (AP) — A group of major railroads asked the house interstate commerce committee today to sponsor legislation providing for establishment of a five-man general transportation board.

Under a plan outlined by R. V. Fletcher, general counsel for the Association of American Railroads, the presidentially-appointed board would take over financial and administrative functions of the present interstate commerce commission and entire administration of the bureau of public roads.

The board also would have power to authorize issuance of securities and determine what certificates should be issued for the construction or abandonment of transportation lines.

Mexico Rejects Offer By Germans, Is Report

Mexico City — (AP) — United States Ambassador Joseph Daniels announced today he had been informed that the Mexican government had rejected a proposal to purchase 17 German planes in a barter deal for Mexican oil.

It was understood on good authority that Daniels, learning of the projected trade, had registered objections.

Since Mexico last March 18 expropriated oil properties of 17 American and British companies Germany has become a leading market for Mexican petroleum exports.

Secretary Sees Im- provements in Present Levies

HOPEFUL TONE

U. S. Economists Predict
New Upturn in April

Washington — (AP) — Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau told business men today they not only need not worry about new taxes but may hope for improvements in present taxes to help business.

Expanding on and endorsing President Roosevelt's statement of last week that business men need fear no new taxes, the treasury head said:

"I sincerely hope that congress will take a careful look at the tax laws and see if there are any tax levies holding back business and business men from making further commitments."

"I think the business man ought to feel that the administration wants him to go ahead and take normal business risks and make money."

The secretary said definitely that no tax proposals except reenactment of expiring taxes and possibly a measure to raise approximately $200,000,000 for farm benefits had been brought to his attention.

Proposals Sidetracked
He indicated that even proposals for new taxes to pay for increased armaments have been sidetracked for fear of depressing business, and he said it was "likely" that further defense spending would be financed by borrowing.

Morgenthau told a press conference that he was not willing to say, at least yet, whether there are any dangers to business in present tax levies. He added that constant studies of taxes were being made in the treasury, and that if congress asked for any suggestions he would be ready to testify on the subject.

The administration's only hope at present for increased revenue, he asserted, was from stimulating business and business profits, thereby increasing the yield from present tax rates.

He indicated nothing would be done about taxes, however, until after March 15 income tax collections are in and gave the treasury more definite revenue data to discuss with congress.

"I don't know what congress will do but in making my financing plans I am not counting on any new tax legislation," Morgenthau said.

The secretary again accepted reenactment of the retiring nuisance taxes and a possible farm benefits revenue measure. He called the possible farm revenue measure a "hang over from the last session." Because the last congress failed to act on a recommendation made at that time by the president for providing new taxes for any new benefits ordered paid to farmers.

See Gains In April
A group of government economists forecast today that a further business upturn would begin in April.

After an improvement which carried the federal reserve board index of industrial production from 76 last May to 104 in December, factory paces have been unchanged since Christmas.

The economists, who advise major federal departments, viewed this recent leveling to business as a necessary breath-taking pause.

Government spending, home building, and possible utility and railroad spending were among the factors which the economists named in predicting further upturn.

One of the group said he expected the rise to continue generally throughout the year and to make possible a 1939 average of industrial production of 106 on the federal reserve index. This would compare with an average of 86 in 1938 and 110 in 1937. The index was based on 1923-25 as 100.

Administration officials have said little publicly about the situation, although Secretary Morgenthau told a house committee in January he looked for some improvement this year.

Bund Besieged With Eggs, Vegetables at Los Angeles Meeting

Los Angeles — (AP) — Pelton with eggs and overripe vegetables by a violent crowd of anti-Nazi demonstrators. 300 persons attended a meeting of the German-American Bund here last night at which Adolf Hitler was likened to George Washington.

Seven radio cars of police answered a riot call at the Deutsches Haus as booing pickets outside smashed windows with rocks and drove transformed band members to cover from their guard stations.

One man wearing Nazi insignia was beaten. Another man was hit by a flying rock.

David Hall, Jr., Glendale pamphlet publisher, delivered an address in which he described Washington as "a leader of a revolution who was like Hitler today."

House Engrosses Catlin's Bill on Labor Disputes

Party Lines Split at Overtime Session; Ballot
Is 56 to 40

Madison—(P)—The assembly in a four hour overtime session last night engrossed and advanced toward passage a bill redefining labor disputes and tightening picketing regulations. Party lines split on the 56 to 40 vote.

The bill as amended confines labor disputes to controversies between an employer and the majority of his employees and their chosen organizations.

Supporters said the bill would prevent an A. F. of L. or CIO union from picketing or interfering with establishments having independent unions.

The bill makes it unlawful for anyone to picket or induce others to picket the establishment, employees, supply or delivery vehicles, or customers of anyone engaged in business except when they are direct parties to the dispute.

The original bill by Catlin (R) Appleton, defined a labor dispute as a controversy between an employer and two or more employees, or their representatives, but provided no dispute existed unless the controversy resulted in a strike or lockout. The amendments were offered by Ludvigsen (R) Hartland.

Changes Labor Code

The measure alters the labor code passed in 1931 which authorized strikes and picketing regardless of whether the disputants stand in the proximate relation of employer or employee.

The opposition was led by Biehl (P) Milwaukee, who claimed the bill was unconstitutional and would "invite the worst kind of turmoil this country has seen in many years."

Ludvigsen declared labor was hurting itself by its conduct during the last few years.

"If organized labor continues in Wisconsin as it has in the past," he said, "it will lose many of the legitimate gains it has made in the last few years."

Representatives from the Appleton area divided on the first test vote. Voting to advance the bill toward passage were the author, Mark Catlin of Appleton, Riley of Manitowish County, Schlytzer of Shawano County, Fritzen of Winnebago County, Spearbreaker of Waupaca County, Republicans, and Sweeney of Brown County, Democrat.

Opposing the bill were Peik of Calumet County, and Vogel of Manitowish County, Progressives. Recorded as not voting was Gantner of Outagamie County.

The assembly passed a bill authorizing county boards to maintain public museums. It engrossed bills providing for trailers license fees and excluding teachers over 65 years from the tenure law.

Assembly Kills Sweeney Bill to Limit Car Speed

Catlin Says Present Law
Is Adequate to Cover
Driving Offenses

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—Assemblyman William J. Sweeney of Brown County is a tireless enemy of high speeds on the public highways. He might almost be called indefatigable. For three successive sessions of the legislature he has tried to write into state law a 60 mile per hour day speed limit, and 50 miles an hour at night. Wednesday evening the assembly, by the biggest vote ever, turned him down again, 66 to 28, after almost an hour of mellifluous oratory.

Speaking for his measure, Sweeney declared that a vote against a speed limit is "a vote for murder."

There have been four "murders" in Brown County lately, he added.

Leading the opposition to the bill were Maurice Fitzsimmons, Bond du Lac, and Mark Catlin of Appleton. Fitzsimmons maintained that the speed limit would be a "nuisance," and advocated stricter drivers' license laws.

Catlin held that the present reckless driving statute is adequate for the prevention of all driving offenses. He also pointed out that highway safety experts have failed thus far to recommend speed limits, or to endorse the Sweeney proposal.

C. A. Budlong of Marinette, veteran Republican, gave the assembly and the packed galleries an oration on the menace of "speed demons" to the "little ones in the country." Cities where Representatives oppose speed limits in rural areas (Catlin and Fitzsimmons) have long since enforced 15 and 20 mile limits within their boundaries, he charged.

"One human life is worth more than all the damn cars in Wisconsin," he yelled. He charged that opponents of the Sweeney bill were "tools of the automobile association," and detrimental to "human life."

John W. Grobbschmidt of Milwaukee, Progressive, denied Budlong's

Editor Says More Secure America to Come From Crisis

Walter E. Myer Favors
Moving Ahead With
Armament Program

"America must decide whether her national interests will force her to make common cause with the democracies abroad or whether she can stay out of international conflict," Walter E. Myer, of Washington, D. C., editor of the American Observer, told students of Appleton High school Wednesday afternoon when he appeared on the assembly program in honor of Washington's birthday.

"But whatever the final decision may be, I am in favor of moving ahead with the armament program," he added. "I don't want the same thing to happen to America that happened to Chamberlain at Munich, who acquiesced because he was afraid."

"Even though the ideals of democracy and Christianity do not survive in Europe, Myers stated, we can at least uphold in our own country the policy of George Washington. We can keep the right of free speech inviolate. We can insist that individuals be judged on their own merits, not according to their race or creed."

"I have every hope that a more secure and better America will emerge from this crisis if we keep the faith that established our nation," the speaker declared.

Advices Open Mind

America's great decision would be easier to make, according to Myer, if the course of the dictators could be determined. But no one, he added, can be sure whether the dictatorships will eventually destroy themselves or whether they will seek first to dominate England and France and then even the United States. He advised his audience, however, to be as open-minded as possible, to avoid imputing unworthy motives to anyone, to discuss problems freely, to attempt to secure all the facts.

"In the face of this responsibility," he declared, "can it be nothing more than to approximate the greatness of our national heroes: the honesty and integrity of Washington, the magnanimity and unselfishness of Lincoln."

Myer gave his audience a glimpse of national politics when he described the weekly press conferences which the president conducts. "This is a custom peculiar to the United States," he said. "In no other country does the national leader talk things over with newspaper representatives."

Explains Conference

Discussing the recent break between the military affairs committee of the senate and the president, Myer explained to his audience that Roosevelt had probably spoken "off the record." When these statements, given in confidence, were made public, he was forced to deny them. "After all, you can't expect him to invite Hitler and Mussolini to these sessions," Myer added.

In his introduction of the speaker H. H. Helble, principal, told students how he himself had once studied under Myer in high school and was influenced by his teaching to continue his work in the social sciences. A tea in Myer's honor was held after school in the Early American room. The social science department of the high school was host. Following the address Miss Sofia Nicolazzo, home arts instructor, and John Goodrich, history instructor, sang two duets, "Drink to Me Only with Thine Eyes" and "Faith of Our Fathers." They were accompanied at the piano by David Bliss.

Linoleum Layers to Attend Demonstration

Linoleum layers and sales forces from six Appleton stores will attend a 6:30 dinner this evening in the Conway hotel at which J. De Storie, representative of a linoleum company, will give a demonstration in linoleum laying. About 30 people are expected. De Storie will also talk on sales methods.

Balkan Entente Fails to Show Signs of Shaking Off Hitler's Rule Over Economic Policies

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE
New York — (P) — The untamed states of the Balkan entente have met again to see what they should or could do about the economic domination which Nazi Leader Hitler has imposed over their part of the world since his Czechoslovak coup—and they have in effect wound up by signing for another season under his management.

Simultaneously the new Hungarian government announced that it "agrees with the peaceful aims of the Rome-Berlin axis."

This comprises a clean sweep of all the countries from central Europe right through to the land of the Turks, barring Bulgaria. And Herr Hitler already had Bulgaria signed. That there were mental protests and reservations in numerous instances is well known. The Balkans don't take kindly to intrusion on their liberties. However, their tacit recognition of Hitler's control was a real and highly important triumph for him.

Hardy Nations

The Balkan entente is composed of Yugoslavia, Rumania, Turkey and Greece—as hardy a group as one would be likely to find. Bulgaria—sometimes in the past called the bad lad of the Balkans—is a holdout, and for reasons which are very human and easy to understand.

Yugoslavia, Rumania and Greece are all pulled out like the fat man of Bombay with territories taken from Bulgaria at the end of the World war. Czar Ferdinand of Bulgaria had backed Germany, that is to say, the wrong horse.

The Balkan entente was formed chiefly to maintain the territorial status quo, which was a polite way of ganging up on Bulgaria insofar as concerned the disputed territories. Bulgaria declined to join the entente until she got territorial revisions. That brings us up to the present meeting.

The representatives of the entente met at Bucharest and considered the whole economic drive through the Balkans. So far as appeared, the deliberations were not hostile to Germany but rather were directed towards protecting the sovereignties of the members and maintaining peace.

The meeting terminated with an announcement that there was on "identity of views" on all international questions affecting the Balkans. There has been nothing to indicate that Hitler's position in that region has been seriously challenged. This means much to him, as he is placing great dependence on the Balkans to furnish products which will go far towards making Germany self-sufficient.

McNary Offers to Help Democrats Speed Up Program

Would Clear Way for Prompt Adjournment
Of Congress

Washington—(P)—Speaker Bankhead told his press conference today President Roosevelt had "rather definitely stated" he did not intend to propose any additional new legislation to congress at this session.

For that reason, the speaker said, pending legislation to change the social security law and provide aid for the transportation industry and similar controversial proposals would largely determine the length of the session.

"It is the policy of the house leadership," Bankhead said, "to press the regular supply bills to passage as quickly as possible. I see no reason at this time why there should be any undue delay in getting through with this business."

The speaker refused, however, to predict a definite date for adjournment.

Washington—(P)—Senator McNary of Oregon, the Republican leader, offered today to cooperate in Democratic efforts for early enactment of a legislative program and subsequent prompt adjournment of congress.

McNary said Republicans would offer no obstacles to speedy consideration of measures which the administration wishes to bring to the floor.

"All we want," he said, "is a reasonable amount of time to study each bill on its merits and we will be ready to vote."

Democratic leader, announced yesterday he planned to call chairmen of major committees, all of whom are Democrats, into conference later this week to attempt to line up a program.

Although Barkley said he felt the legislative lull which has kept the senate in recess most of the time since congress convened Jan. 3 was not unusual, McNary said he had experienced nothing like it in his 20 years on Capitol Hill.

Charges Program Lacking

"The administration does not seem to have a program," McNary declared.

Although President Roosevelt opened a variety of subjects in his messages to congress, only the administration's defense program and measures to extend New Deal agencies have shown any marked progress.

Barkley declined to outline a prospective program in advance of his meeting with the committee chairmen. He said, however, it was reasonable to assume that railroad, neutrality, labor relations, relief, farm and communications legislation would be taken up.

He added it was his understanding that there would be no new tax program, tax legislation being limited largely to re-enactment of the present "nuisance" levies which expire this spring.

Besides the subjects listed by Barkley, government reorganization and extension of the social security system were on the administration program. Changes in the neutrality law also may be proposed if European tension continues.

The colony was started in 1935 by 200 farmers moved here from midwest drought regions by the government.

Thomson Defends Bill to Merge All Penal Activities

Says Social Minded
Groups of State in Favor of Proposal

Madison—(P)—Assembly Speaker Vernon Thomson (R) Richland Center, told the house welfare committee yesterday his bill for a new department consolidating the state's penal, corrective and charitable activities, incorporates the views of all social minded agencies in Wisconsin.

Numerous interested groups and their representatives endorsed the proposed setup as "unified, integrated and streamlined."

They termed it more economical and more efficient than the present system of scattering the functions through the board of control and other departments.

The bill consolidates the board of control, department of mental hygiene, public welfare department, pension department, and industrial commission duties relating to the adjudication of relief disputes between counties.

7-Man Board

It sets up a seven-man policy forming board, paid on a $10 per diem basis and appointed by the governor with the consent of the senate. The board appoints a director at a salary of not more than $7,500 annually.

The department is divided into five divisions, public assistance, child welfare, mental hygiene, corrections—with a three-man parole board—and accounting and research. Although the director would not be under civil service, Thomson introduced an amendment to place the division heads under that status.

"The present setup is not coordinated and encourages incumbent officials to entrench themselves in office," Thomson said.

Those appearing in favor of the bill included: Mrs. Ray Brown, Mrs. Walter Sharpe of the Wisconsin League of Women Voters; Frank A. Ross, of the Wisconsin Conference of Social Work; Mrs. Gladys Traver of the Wisconsin Congress of Parents and Teachers; Mrs. O. M. De Weert, and H. W. Powers of the Wisconsin Society of Mental Hygiene.

The committee took under advisement bills calling for the distribution of free milk to an estimated 318,000 school children in the first five elementary grades, and for free hospitalization of tuberculosis patients.

Supporters of the milk bill claimed it would cost only $145,000 annually and eliminate "the milk surplus."

Kay Francis, actress, was second on the list of Warner Brothers Pictures Inc., with $224,000, compared with $209,100 in 1932.

Columbia Pictures Corporation reported that Harry Cohn, its president, received $182,920 in 1933.

Modern Dormitories are Urged For U. W. Short Course Students

Madison—(P)—The assembly agriculture committee was swamped yesterday by farm representatives' appeals to rescue the short course students at the state university from the sheepbarns and barracks now used for housing quarters.

It was all "pro" and no "con" at the hearing on the bill of Assemblyman Biehler (D), Belgium, which appropriates $275,000 for two modern dormitories and a central educational building. Committee members were sympathetic but inquired skeptically where the state could get the money.

Biehler declared the state should be ashamed of the facilities now provided.

"I realize the treasury is in dire need but if we are going to hold out as the best dairy state in the Union we must give our farm youth more consideration," he said.

Milo Swanton, secretary of the Wisconsin Council of Agriculture, said the dormitories would be used for farm gatherings 10 months of the year and would make possible a short course on domestic science for girls.

Dairy Inspection Bill

The committee heard conflicting reactions to a bill to compel counties having more than 50 cheese factories to hire a dairy inspector at $150 a month.

P. A. Pratt, secretary of the Wisconsin Milk Dealers' association said it would promote a quality improvement program but should have wider application.

R. N. Roethlisberger, member of the Dane county board objected to placing the cost upon counties.

He said the department of agriculture and markets with inaction, Roethlisberger declared these prices have been depressed by monopolies buying up accumulated stocks in the summer at whatever price they wanted to pay.

He said the boards of Dane and other counties adopted a resolution for investigation of "monopolistic" practices of the Swiss cheese industry, referred it to the attorney general and have heard nothing since.

Biehler asked Roethlisberger to produce the resolution.

Guam Little Island Surrounded by Japan, Rep. Bolles Explains

Washington — (P) — Representatives Bolles (R-Wis.) gave the house a lesson in geography yesterday.

"Guam," he said, during debate on the naval construction bill, "is a little island entirely surrounded by Japan."

Noting that several house members had been poring over a map hunting the island, he said: "I am of the opinion that before the question came to the house—and I am glad it is here—the house members thought that Guam was like Boston—a state of mind."

Indicating that Japan would take over the island some day, Bolles said he did not see the wisdom of adding to the island's wealth by the proposed $5,000,000 worth of harbor improvements.

"I am moved to emotion," he continued, "when I think of all the millions of our people—the aliens on the WPA, the mountain girls who are curling their hair with TVA electricity, the college graduates and government employees who may live—and perhaps die, without knowing of the beauty of the island and rain-inhabited Guam."

Guam, the incomprehensible, where, without a St. Patrick, there are no snakes and where the girls started the red lips habit by chewing betel nut."

All This Fuss About Foreign Affairs Is No Help at Home

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER
Washington—Sit down and count 10 and then ask yourself what further good can come from continuing this rabble-rousing over foreign affairs? Such as the inflammatory speech this week by Senator Key Pittman, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee?

One Republican speaker, Senator Bridges, calls it "teasing the wolf nations."
How long does this have to be kept up?
By now the whole world knows we don't like the nazis and the fascists. The whole world knows we don't like the conduct of Hitler and Mussolini. This government has been specific and emphatic about that. We have made it clear that our sympathies are with Great Britain and France. Our government has made it plain—not only by words but by action—that we give all possible breaks to Great Britain and France.

All of that is known now, not only to the whole world but what is more important, to Hitler and Mussolini. These are the two men to whom we are trying to get the idea across. You have only to read excerpts from the German and Italian press to know that they get the idea.

That being so, what is to be gained by harping on the theme day after day? What, except to fan American public sentiment into hysteria? Do we want to have public brawls in cities all over America as we had in New York a couple of nights ago? Next it will be the turn of nazi sympathizers to go into communist meetings and try to break them up. Are we going to go through another nightshirt period?

So long as communists are harmless, they have free speech. When the time arrives that it is generally felt they are a menace to public order and to our form of government, they will be suppressed. Democracy, like any other form of government, reserves the right of self-defense, and if free speech is taken advantage of to the point where it jeopardizes our government it will be curbed, principles or no principles. Self-preservation is the first law of governments as well as of individuals. So with the American nazis. They will be suppressed when they become a real menace. Public opinion, in its vague but effective way, decides when the time has come and public authorities move in.

Meantime it isn't necessary for our purposes at home and abroad

Haertel Residence, Former Parsonage at Northport are Sold

Northport — Three real estate transactions have been made here recently.

Louis Stillman of Weyauwega has purchased the home of Mrs. Carrie Haertel. Stillman has opened a chicken farm.
George Dolhoff has bought from Frank Pahl the home that at one time was the Methodist parsonage. The two families that occupied the residence, the A. Nollenbergs and Charles Blanks, will move. The Nollenbergs will live in the former Clifton Carver home on County Trunk X between Northport and New London and the Blanks in a bungalow on the same road.

H. Sanford has purchased the property formerly known as Furbish's Point, where he has his carpools. For the last two years he has shipped car loads of carp to the east. He plans to remodel what is known as Paradise Inn for residential purposes.

be facilitated by continuing to prod the American people until a wave of unreasoning anger sets in. When you have that, you will have a wild force completely out of control. Roosevelt cannot operate with freedom in such a situation. He too becomes a victim of the availing rage and has lost the power of decision.

And a continued campaign that whips up hysteria diverts attention from the prosaic but essential business at home. We have huge unemployment, an armament program won't of itself pull us out of that. Nor will it solve the farm problem, or move the ever increasing cotton surplus. Business and trade need to be cultivated. You cannot do that with the whole nation in jitters over Europe.

It is as important to make democracy succeed at home as to establish it on the Rhine—and considerably easier.

Fisher Waits on Heil's Program

Waupaca Senator Sure Governor Will Help State Farmers

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison—Fred R. Fisher, new Republican senator from the Waupaca county district, said here today that the Heil administration is committed to a farm program, and that he is waiting for a program of agricultural legislation to be introduced in the legislature.

Fisher, who joined his legislative mates three weeks late because of illness, said that the problem of agricultural relief is the most important confronting the legislature and the state administration, because "agriculture is the foundation of our prosperity of our lack of it in Wisconsin."

"Until the farmers are able to pay their bills and to buy goods we won't have a permanent prosperity," he averred.

"This administration is committed to an agricultural program, both by its campaign platform and its campaign speeches."

Pointing out that the administration has already begun its program of reorganizing the department of agriculture and markets, but he added that he will oppose any reduction in agricultural appropriations which are beneficial to agricultural interests.

He explained that Governor Heil in his executive budget proposed a cut from $12,000 to $5,000 for potato research. "That ought to be restored," he said.

Fisher also explained that "we'll get the wreckage cleared away soon now," referring to the efforts of the Republican-controlled houses to repeal and nullify many of the LaFollette-sponsored laws and LaFollette-created state agencies.

"We've got to clean it up first before we can build a new structure," he observed.

Wisconsin's Health

BY DR. C. A. HARPER

State Health Officer
The provisional vital statistics for 1938 have been tabulated, affording a snapshot of how we are faring in health and longevity. The variety of death causes continues to increase, and the internationally recognized list of them now totals 115. The cause of birth, however, continues its simple unified stride, refusing to become complicated even to the tendency of professors to give it fancy titles such as "the biological urge."

Our live births last year totaled 53,106 in the provisional count, and belated certificates will probably increase this number by close to 1,000, when the official count is made later in the year, to give us the greatest number of births since 1931.

Things must be going pretty well in Wisconsin, for the birth rate is a modern barometer of economic conditions.

Our deaths last year were limited to 30,414 in the provisional count, but belated certificates will also increase this total somewhat, although not to the extent that the birth total is increased in the final count. The present total represents a death rate of 10.0 deaths per 1,000 population, lowest since 1933, bespeaking an unusually healthy year, probably achieved through the combination of friendly weather conditions, personal hygiene and public health procedures.

Our leading death causes preserved their relative positions occupied in 1937. They are, in order of importance, heart diseases, cancer, cerebral hemorrhage, accidents, nephritis, pneumonia, malformations—diseases of—early infancy, and tuberculosis. There is reason for loud cheers over the tuberculosis campaigning. For the first year on record Wisconsin's toll from this cause has been less than 1,000. The provisional count showed 912 deaths. And we've "only begun to fight!"

Hollywood—Settin' Around (Warner Brothers): The belligerent bosses of this studio are putting themselves squarely on the spot with their bombastic publicity campaign

Fidler

In order to live up to their sensational publicity, which has topped anything emanating from these parts for years, they must make a picture so sizzling hot that it will scorch the screen. If it falls short of the promised sensationalism, audiences will feel kysed—and that means financial disaster. And if they make good all their advance talk—use the real names of high German officials and a foreward vouching for the authenticity of all the events depicted—Uncle Sam, who can't very well let movie producers take over his information diplomacy, is more than apt to call a halt. Still worse, to make the picture sensational, they will have to fill out G-Mar Turrou's book with a lot of studio written fiction. I've read an advance copy—and found it about as exciting as "Little Women" and not nearly as good screen material as that classic. It's padded, trivial and dull.

I can understand the Warners' indignation about reported happenings in Germany for most of us share it. But wouldn't motion picture makers be wiser to let government agencies handle the Nazis while they content themselves with being their own garden—which should be devoted to entertaining pictures?

CHATTER ABOUT WARNER IDOLS: Those dark glasses of Paul Muni's aren't worn for appearance sake—the sun sends stabbing pains through his eyes. It's a busman's holiday for Belte Davis—she's spending her vacation reading scripts for her next picture. May Robinson insists she's the youngest star on the lot and will have no coddling. If the other glamour gals aren't careful, those Lane Sisters will corner the romance market—they have more boy-friends than they know what to do with. Looks like marriage might be a synonym for oblivion in Wayne Morris' case—haven't heard a word about him since he was altered. That cigar routine of Eddie Robinson's isn't an acting trick—he handles his stogies that way off-screen, too. Look alike: John Payne and John Boles—when I first knew John Boles. Fay Bainter, up for two Academy Awards, still thinks the stage was more fun.

The most realistic set I've ever seen in Hollywood is the prison jute mill installed on a sound stage here for "Each Dawn I Die." Where Warners leased the machinery I don't know but it is complete to the last detail. William A. Buckley, Warden of the Minnesota State Penitentiary, supervised the installation and a crew of sixty (including cordage workers are making the wheels go around. Meanwhile the picture's stars are getting along without their customary smokes for the air is filled with sisal dust, as explosive as coal dust. Outside, the stage a squad of firemen search every visitor for lighters and matches—and I saw the pay-off today when a group of the front-office executives, on their own published order, had to submit to having their pockets picked. Movie making isn't all fun.

Another unit of the same company was shooting the court room scene in which Jimmy Cagney is condemned. The script called for him to struggle with the two husky policemen escorting him and the director urged him to make his resistance look "real." Cagney, whose not very impressive size belies enormous strength, more than followed directions. With a sudden lunge he sent the two brawny staggering across the set—and George Raft, who was standing beside me on the sidelines, touched my arm. "Look," he said dolefully, "that's the guy I have to fight in 'Reel Eight!'"

A typical Hollywood touch on the set where "Waterfront," another thrill-em, cops-and-robbers picture is shooting. The leading man is Dennis Morgan. A year or so ago, as "Stanley Morner," he was singing recitals as the protégé of Mary Garden. Her praise of his great voice, that thing called influence, and his own gods looks landed him a studio contract, presumably to sing. So what? So—after twiddling his thumbs for months—he's making his debut as a waterfront detective. And he doesn't sing a note!

On the "Hell's Kitchen" set, Billy Halop, one of the Dead-End Kids, was being shut up in a big refrigerator—a punishment for defying an official of the reformatory which is the picture's setting. The door swung shut, there was a sound of suffling inside the refrigerator and Director Lew Seiler wanted to know what was wrong. "That's Halop," piped Bobby Jordan, "playing with the other hams!" # 2,000-Hour Work Contracts Have Flaws-Lawrence

Meaning Construed by Government Casts Doubts On Their Merits

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—When the wage and hour law was passed, it looked as if unionization in America had received certain concessions which would be of incalculable aid in its membership drives. This came about because the law permits work up to 56 hours in any given week and an offsetting diminution of hours in other weeks, but only in those instances where employers have signed contracts with bona fide labor unions.

Now, however, the latest disclosure by the wage and hour office here of what the government construes to be the meaning of an "annual wage" or "annual employment" has tended to cast doubts on the merits of what are known as 2,000-hour contracts. The law says that overtime need not be paid if an employee is employed "on an annual basis in pursuance of an agreement with his employer, made as a result of collective bargaining by representatives of employees certified as bona fide by the National Labor Relations board, which provides that the employee shall not be employed more than 2,000 hours during any period of 52 consecutive weeks."

If the above language were to stand alone, there might not be any difficulty about it and unions could make contracts with employers for not more than 2,000 hours and provide in the contracts that this does not mean the employer is obligated to furnish a whole year of work, or that he must guarantee to individuals a year's compensation or any major portion thereof. But the wage and hour administrator, in a formal regulation, has undertaken to interpret what was supposed to have been meant by congress in using the words "annual wage." Here is the way the regulation is described in a formal opinion by the office of the wage and hour division here:

Annual Basis

"It is apparent from the legislative history of Section 7 that by requiring the employee to be employed 'on an annual basis' congress intended that the employee be guaranteed either a fixed annual wage or annual employment. It was brought to the attention of congress that an employer might, for example, guarantee his employees $30 a week for 52 weeks, or a fixed annual wage of $1,560, regardless of the number of hours an employee worked in any particular week. Thus, an employee might work 52 hours in one week but 16 hours in another, yet receive $30 for each week. This plan could not be continued in effect if the employer was required to pay time and one-half the regular rate of pay for all hours worked in excess of 44 hours in weeks that the employee worked 52 hours.

"It was thus to encourage the regularization and stabilization of employment and income that congress required that the employee be employed on an 'annual basis' before the employer was given an exception from the overtime provisions of the act.

Now, the difficulty is that not many employers will want to sign contracts obligating them in these uncertain times to guarantee annual employment or any particular period approaching 2,000 hours. If conditions should turn adversely and a company gets a flock of cancellations of orders, it would be unable to curtail operations but must accept the financial losses of the period involved. Wealthy companies may feel able in some instances to do this, but the marginal companies, those striving to find a way to compete against their stronger rivals, would hesitate to take such financial hazards, especially with limited capital or resources.

Employment Guarantee

Then there is the question of what is really meant by a guarantee of employment "on an annual basis." Does this mean that employees who are not needed in a particular activity or who are dismissed because they are not as competent as others who might be hired would be able to recover by damage suits the remainder of the compensation for the balance of the 2,000 hours which they did not work?

Quite often, in disputes over the tenure of individual service contracts, it has been held that where a certain period is mentioned—as, for instance, in this case 2,000 hours—the term of the contract may be fixed by the number of hours specified. Heretofore, contracts have been written with a specification that the wages are weekly and that the hours are weekly or by the day. To write contracts with a reference to such long periods as 2,000 hours may make them subject to the possible legal interpretation in the courts that individuals have annual contracts and cannot have their services terminated before the period mentioned has expired.

Safeguard Employers

To meet this situation in part, it is pointed out that the law and the regulations now permit contracts for 1,000 hours or 26 weeks. But here again the risk of a 26-week contract may involve financial obligation too great to be assumed. If the lawyers cannot work out a type of contract which will safeguard employers from these risks, the 2,000-hour idea and even the 1,000-hour plan may become dead letters, and one of the main incentives to unionization and an increase in labor union membership will have been removed. For the wage and hour administration has said in another connection that the terms of the wage and hour law in no way affect contracts separately entered into with respect to wages and hours if they do not conflict with the provisions of the present law as to minimum pay and maximum hours. In other words, whatever contract obligations the common law or state law may impose on employers and employees when they enter into contracts for services are in nowise diminished by the wage and hour law itself. From this it would seem that, if the wage and hour contract for 1,000 hours or 2,000 hours is not qualified in a form satisfactory to all three interests—the unions, the employers and the wage and hour authorities—the principle of cumulating hours will not be available of very much in business and industry.

CRUISING

The President is on a Caribbean cruise aboard a battleship. He will witness the maneuvers of our fleet, now translated to the Atlantic as a prelude to its extensive obedience to Grover Whalen and A.D. 1939. The President has been suffering from a cold. Let us hope that he returned improved in health, refreshed, rested and equable in temperament. Guantanamo or some obscure harbor in San Domingo gives, of course, but a short perspective on the United States. Nevertheless, Mr. Roosevelt goes abroad; he leaves the domestic limits, and he may be able, in the tropical reaches of the Caribbean, to pause for reflection.

Of course, just before he sailed Mr. Roosevelt smelled a crisis in European affairs that might force him to dash back to Washington at a second's notice. Mr. Roosevelt dotes on crises, and if the time ever comes when he cannot find one he will manufacture it.

The President could give a thought to the Democratic future. Is the Democratic future, for example, a New Deal future? Large numbers of Democrats in Congress do not think so. One of the characteristic aspects of the New Deal is its extemporaneous character—a series of improvisations almost overpowering in their financial grandeur, each invested with an air of moral fervor and a bright look.

Principle emerges here and there, but no rounded design. There is grave disquietude in Democratic ranks of the Congress concerning the indirection and negotiations of the Administration's course. Mr. Roosevelt's leadership has been dissipated. At least where it is still exerted it is apt to take the form of the confusion of his foreign policies or the whimsies of some of his nominations. Amlie, for example. Thus Democratic strength in Congress becomes disunited and dispersed.

The November elections represented a recession of Democratic power, which is still, at least on the numerical side, overwhelming in both houses. But the Democrats are split, and no formula of appeasement or co-operation comes from the White House. When Democrats in the House of Representatives absent themselves from sittings of the Committee of the Whole and attending Republicans are thus able to write legislation, the inertia and indifference are obvious. As Representative Cox of Georgia puts it: "We do not want to be treated like wooden men to be pushed over at the will and whim of the President." He asserted that the President would do well to take members into his confidence.

The Republicans in Congress are doing an effective job, from their viewpoint, and 1940 comes on apace. When the President finishes his cruise he will find that all the maneuvers are not in the Caribbean, and that Problem X, which concerns the Democratic candidate in 1940, and what platform he shall run on, remains to be solved. There are quite a few strategists working on that one.

FISH AND WAR

Japan seems very much in earnest about its fishing policy. A fisheries treaty with Russia has expired, and the Russian government seems in no hurry to renew it. Tokyo statesmen threaten war if their former fishing rights in Siberian waters are not renewed.

This is a question in which Americans are naturally interested, being the same in principle as controversies we have had with Japan over fishing rights in Alaskan waters. There has been no trouble lately on our side, but nobody ever knows when it will break out again. To Japan, with her vast and crowded island population, a plentiful supply of fish is a matter of life or death. A war might be fought with Russia on that question.

Just now, however, neutral observers are suspecting that there are bigger fish involved than any on the Siberian coast. Japan has been moving an army up to the Siberian border in Manchouuo. The Tokyo imperialists may be planning to strike for a quick conquest of eastern Siberia, partly because they want that territory, and partly because it would help their ally Hitler by keeping Russia busy while Hitler drives for the Ukraine.

AND THE BARBER WHO NEVER SHAVED

A writer on agricultural subjects for a Texas newspaper made a trip recently through the Rio Grande Valley which has been transformed by the most patient cultivation from a worthless desert of prickly pear to an immense and blooming citrus orchard of over half a million acres.

But this agricultural writer went from place to place, drug store to ice cream parlor, village to village, seeking a glass of fresh grapefruit juice only to be told repeatedly, "We do not serve fresh grapefruit juice but we have some of the canned."

But let us not laugh too merrily at this instance from a great distance.

We have heard too many complaints in our own Wisconsin from travelers from afar who expected at our resort hotels that they would surely be served with fresh vegetables only to find that the peas were canned, and the beans were canned, and the corn was canned. And the great disappointment should always be registered of those healthy boys from out the state who talked and planned all winter long about their vacation in the cherry pie country, and dreamt pretty visions of the reddest and most luscious of cherry pies only to stop at a wayside hut in Door county and bite into a sort of red goo or sludge which was substituting for the cherries.

Canned articles are splendid and canning has become an art but people still crave the fresh, just as created by dear old Mother Nature.

But we have also been told about the dairy farmers who have interstate shipments of oleo. And there are the men in the hog country who disdain the virtues of their own hams. And there are the children of sheep growers who wouldn't wear wool and the shoemakers' boys who always went barefoot.

In a country so bewildered by organizations as ours one must be almost ready to dodge brick bats when he suggests another. But wherever there is such a plain opportunity for improvement the virtues of organization are likely to appeal.

DR. WILSON

The death of Dr. Clarence True Wilson removes from the American scene a man who was one of the most important and characteristic figures of the postwar decade—the decade that now seems to us to have been one of delusive hopes. The United States had its own ideological preoccupations long before ideologies came into power at Rome and Berlin. Our Government and people believed themselves realists, wanting none of such futile projects as the League of Nations and all that stuff. So we amended the Constitution and tried Prohibition. Deluded Europe devoted itself to the moral whimsies of Geneva, but the grim realism of—well, let us put it Topeka, Kan., was good enough for us.

Dr. Wilson was chairman of the Methodist Board of Temperance, and as such he became the center of controversies and criticism. He had a sincere and child-like faith in his cause—a cause given a constitutional imprimatur, an extreme cause tried and in the end found wanting. But he never had the irritant qualities of such an advocate as Bishop Cannon, and those who knew him realized that he was a cosmopolitan person of sorts.

One of his hobbies was bizarre. He believed that the man who died one April night in a burning Maryland barn was not John Wilkes Booth. Booth, to him, died in Enid, Okla., in 1903 or so under the name of John St. Helen. This person, according to Dr. Wilson, was unable to relinquish his first name, John, but he had such a sense of exile that he drew his pencil through the final "a" and adopted the surname alias of "St. Helen." Dr. Wilson was convinced that this person was Booth; he spent his private means to establish proof, and his case was documented. He had interests and qualities that were not apparent in his public character as a prohibitionist, and his preoccupation with what might be called the St. Helen legend brought him a collateral and oblique fame.

BIGGEST PROBLEM

A curious situation is discovered in applying the Ohio Unemployment Compensation Act. There are far fewer applications than were expected. In Cuyahoga County, for instance, the largest industrial community in the state, the manager expected 90,000 legitimate applications when the benefit payments became effective the first of the year, but by the middle of February only 14,000 had applied.

There were plenty of others who needed help and who would be eligible, except for a curious provision in the law. An applicant is required to have worked for at least 20 weeks in private industry during the year preceding his application for benefit payments. But most of the people needing help have not had that much work. Thus those who most need help can't get it.

It is just another awkward angle of a problem the whole country is struggling with, and of which there seems no end. No doubt about it—unemployment is the biggest fact and the biggest headache in America. Whoever can solve it in a constructive and productive way will be the biggest American.

Municipal authorities in Istanbul, Turkey, destroyed 17,162 stray dogs and 2,150 cats last year.

Portuguese's African colony, Mozambique, has a non-native population of 45,750 persons.

Sixteen years ago, 95 per cent of the residents of Turkey were illiterate. Now, less than 40 per cent are.

For the past three years, Gary Cooper has maintained his position in Japan as the most popular movie star, of any nation.

DALE HARRISON'S In Old New York

New York—Albert Stevens Crockett of the Biltmore was reading in the papers the other day a dispatch from Carmel, Cal., which reported the death there of Miss Helen Ware, the actress.

"Miss Ware," commented Crockett, "was the original of that famous but now monotonous headline: 'Actress Carried Away by Departing Liner.'"

It happened, Crockett recalled, in 1906 or 1907. Crockett at that time was a Ship News reporter for the old New York Herald. Miss Ware was playing at the time with Arnold Daly in a play at the Berkeley Theatre on West 44th Street, around the corner from Fifth Avenue and just across the street from the old Sherry's. The show was very bad, and the producers decided something sensational was required to arouse public interest.

With that as background, let Crockett tell the rest of the story:

"It was a raw, dark morning. The old S.S. Lorraine was about to sail. The departure of a trans-Atlantic liner was much more of an event in those days than now, and there was a large crowd at the pier. Three Ship News reporters were there to cover the story of departure, and I was one of them.

"Coming down the gangplank after the 'All Ashore' warning had been sounded, I saw standing inconspicuously at one side of the pier Mr. Walter Kingsley, perhaps the most astute and best liked theatrical press agent of the day. Lying at the end of the pier I noticed a tug, held fast only by a spring line looped over a pile. The man on the tug could cast off quickly merely by dropping one end of the rope.

The gangplank was pulled in, the ship's siren sounded a long note, and the Lorraine moved slowly toward the middle of the stream, Europe bound. She was about 300 yards off shore when a woman's scream sounded across the water to the large crowd waving from the pier:

"Help! Help! I've been carried away!"

"At the sound of the woman's voice the skipper of the tug I had noticed at the end of the pier dropped the spring line, and the tug puffed swiftly toward the liner. We could see a hysterical woman on the ship, and could observe the efforts of women passengers and ship's officers as they tried unsuccessfully to calm her.

"The tug pulled alongside the liner and I was surprised to see a ladder run up to the ship's rail from the top deck of the tug. I say 'surprised' because it wasn't customary to have a ladder so conveniently arranged for such an emergency.

"The woman descended the ladder and was returned to the pier by the tug. She was Miss Helen Ware, Arnold Daly's leading lady.

"I returned to the Herald office and told the city editor what had happened—how the actress had almost been carried to Europe. I also told him that I had noticed Walter Kingsley's presence there, and I did not fail to tell him the strange tug that seemed to be waiting for something special to happen.

"Press agent stuff!" snorted the city editor. 'Sounds like one of Walter Kingsley's stunts. Don't write any story about it. In this town you've gotta keep your fingers crossed against press agents.'

"The next day when I got to the office the city editor called me over.

"I wish you hadn't told me about the press agent being around yesterday when that Helen Ware story broke," he said. He showed me the other morning papers. 'Every other paper in town has been giving me a terrific bawling out. He says it was a great story, even if it was planted by a press agent.'

"Therefore, Crockett, if you ever see a press agent hanging around in the background of any future story you are covering, don't tell me about it. I don't like getting scooped by my own prejudices."

From that day right down to now the "Actress Carried Away" story has appeared with faithful regularity. Ever since Miss Helen Ware, the actress who started the whole business, died, not a soul mentioned it!" (Copyright, 1939)

Looking Backward

25 YEARS AGO

Thursday, Feb. 26, 1914

Green Bay voters the previous day defeated a movement to adopt commission form of government. This was the second time that Green Bay voters turned down commission government.

Lawrence college was preparing to take over the George F. Peabody home and remodel the building for use as a girls' dormitory. The property had been owned by Mrs. William Harper had a life interest in which she had decided to waive so that Lawrence might have immediate use of the building.

Prof. F. W. Orr had recovered sufficiently from smallpox to resume his teaching at the college.

Appleton, Menasha and Weyauwega were among the basketball teams entered in the elimination tournament at Oshkosh to determine which should enter the state championship tournament in Appleton.

F. Wolf purchased the building occupied by the People's Clothing company from the Gerhard Kamps estate.

10 YEARS AGO

Thursday, Feb. 21, 1929

The question of whether snow was to be removed from county highways next year was to be submitted to the voters at the coming April election, the county board decided at the closing meeting of the February session that morning. The action came after the board heard severe criticism of the way snow removal was handled that winter.

The common council adopted a resolution asking the state legislature to regulate the licensing of inter-city buses by cities. The action grew out of a controversy over licensing Wisconsin Michigan Power Co. buses.

A petition protesting the rebuilding of the railroad stockyards on North Division street, recently damaged by a freight car, was being circulated. It had been proposed to build the yards on the edge of the city.

Young Stridling and Jack Sharkey were in training for a heavyweight championship fight at Miami, Fla., early in March.

A Bystander In Washington

BY FRESTON GROVER

Washington—Possibly the unluckiest (or the luckiest) man in the country today is Joseph George Strecker of Hot Springs, Ark., who is being used as a legal guinea pig to decide whether Harry Bridges, West Coast CIO longshoremen's leader, shall be deported.

Grover

The U. S. Supreme Court has Strecker's case in hand and a decision will be down soon. But the big game in the woods is not inconsequential Bridges.

The law says any alien advocating overthrow of the U. S. Government by force must be deported. The Justice Department in prosecuting Strecker, argued that communism advocates overthrow of the Government, and therefore an alien Communist can't stay here.

District Judge Wayne G. Borah (nephew of the senator) decided that was so and Strecker must go. The Fifth Circuit Court disagreed and reversed the decision. From there the case went to the Supreme Court.

How Bridges Fits In
Bridges comes into the picture this way. His many critics, including Representative Dies, investigating un-American activities, have contended that files in the Labor Department prove that Bridges not only was a Communist but had personally advocated violent overthrow of the Government.

Secretary of Labor Perkins persistently has denied this but in 1937 the department discovered more substantial evidence and began deportation proceedings against Bridges. It was ticklish business for an administration supported by labor. Bridges is a big CIO figure.

Then came the circuit court decision in the Strecker case holding that an alien couldn't be deported just because he was a Communist. The Labor Department grabbed it, suspended proceedings against Bridges and announced that a decision would be reached until the Supreme Court decision in the Strecker case showed the way.

Since Strecker's case became the proving ground, strong left wing organizations have come forward with attorneys. To the left wing labor movement Bridges has been worth his weight in gold and not one to be given up easily.

For five years Bridges, an Australian with a hatchet face and a winning way with waterfront workers, has been a pain in the side of the West Coast ship operators. He organized dock workers from Seattle to San Diego. He snatched unions away from AFL and linked them to John L. Lewis' CIO. So AFL is against him. CIO leaders fear him. The American Legion has pledged aid in having him put out of the country.

Three times he has started the naturalization process, but each time dropped it. A delay in acting on his case brought impeachment charges against Secretary Perkins.

Just A Bystander

As to Strecker, he is a sort of "innocent bystander." An Aussie of Austrian origin he joined the Communist Party in 1932 and passed out campaign handbills. He resigned in 1933. In ruling on his case the circuit court recalled that the deportation law was enacted during the jittery period after Russia went Communist.

"Much water, socially and politically, has gone under the bridge since 1920," the court said.

The evidence for Strecker makes him out a small bourgeois, a merchant, with a little capital, some caninness, a fair amount of human kindness, some bad habits and apparently no quarrel with the Government of the United States.

Even if the court holds that an alien can't be deported just because he is a Communist, Bridges' foes can still press their claim that he advocated violent overthrow of the Government. But Secretary Perkins says that is just waterfront chatter.

2. U. S. sales to Germany increased more than 40 per cent in 1938. True or false?

London (R). St. Helena, 47 square mile, volcanic born island exile of Napoleon, is to be rehabilitated by the British government.

Colonial Secretary Malcolm MacDonald says steps have been taken to provide a subsidy for reopening flax mills, small loans for repairs to houses, increased wages for government employees and to appoint a superintendent of education. Other proposals are being considered.

THERE ARE TIMES WHEN THE MAINTENANCE OF FREE SPEECH CALLS FOR A LOT OF FORBEARANCE

Under the CAPTIVE DOME

BY JOHN WINGAARD

Madison—For some reason—which this column can't imagine—the Republicans have chosen to make public some of the entertaining requests for patronage which have descended in bales since the attack is on. I know—I had the cri the other day, for first time in many, many years. And it wasn't only my great embarrassment and sense of frustration that made me carry on so alarmingly and manifest a degree of prostration out of all proportion with the trifling fever, if any, associated with the attack. It was just that I felt that way.

Two things helped to moderate the severity of the attack and speed recovery, I believe. First, the admission last spring by a spokesman for the American Medical Association and the New York Medical Society that "a cold is never really just a cold"—a fact I have been for years striving to establish in the mind of the public, the motive, indeed, for my proposal that we cease calling it what it never is, and call it like honest folk. Cri (kree) means simply that you assume it is one or another of the Common Respiratory Infections and so you are warning your friends and associates to beware of your conversational spray, for you don't want to infect anybody, no matter what your cri turns out to be.

The other blessing was quinine. In the present epidemic, whether your attack is the genuine influenza or just plain old grip, if you ask me I say you may pin your faith on quinine. Not because it helped me thru my little sample visitation of the cri, but because it's, in my opinion, the remedy which the world's physicians universally agree is valuable both as prophylactic against the flu and as a remedy for the attack.

Many physicians believe, and I am one of them, that quinine has special efficacy against the pneumococcus, the germ chiefly responsible for pneumonia and frequently the main factor in cases of acute tonsillitis, quinsy, sinusitis, acute bronchitis, even rhinitis or coryza. Moreover an impressive preponderance of clinical reports, statements of experience from physicians in many parts of the world, indicate that quinine has similar efficacy against the bacillus or virus of flu or against both bacillus and virus.

Formerly I suggested combined quinine with salicylate and caffeine for use against flu or other cri. But the purpose of the salicylate (or for that matter salicylic acid ester otherwise known as aspirin) is only to relieve unbearable ache or pain, so it may not be desirable to repeat the dose of salicylate more than once or twice. The caffeine serves only to stimulate the heart against possible depression by the salicylate. So the caffeine need not be repeated if the salicylate is not repeated.

Now I recommend straight quinine: sulphate in one-grain pill, tablet or capsule, two or three times a day through the season as prophylactic against flu or the cri; two grains twice or three times daily for a week or two during an epidemic.

QUININE AGAINST THE FLU

Fortunately most of the cases in the current outbreak of "flu" turn out to be a good deal less serious than influenza—but you need not tell me how serious even the mildest cri seems to the victim while the attack is on. I know—I had the cri the other day, for first time in many, many years. A special advantage of quinine against the flu, grip or "colds" as scoundrels call the cri, in my opinion, is that it is a safe remedy. If it should fail to prevent or cure the illness at least it can do no harm when used as I have recommended.

Your Birthday
By Mary Blake

If February 24, is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:45 a. m. to 12:45 p. m.; from 2:45 to 4:45 p. m., and from 7:45 to 9:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 8:45 to 10:45 a. m.; from 5:45 to 7:45 p. m. and from 9:45 to 11:45 p. m.

Many wrong conceptions will be formed this day through preconceived ideas. Be careful that the judgment of other people does not prejudice you against someone. In tolerance, is apt to be responsible for most of the biased opinions, and may be the cause of a great deal of unfair propaganda being spread. If the average person's sense of importance is offended, enmity is likely to result, so avoid hurting anyone's ego. Ridicule might be one of the day's most dangerous weapons, for the person making use of it is liable to come to more harm than it's intended victim. Through your intolerance, you may have a premonition that it will be unwise to say or do something, so heed it and keep out of trouble. Married and engaged couples, and those who are considering a proposal of marriage, should remember that "Life is not so short but that there is always time enough for courtesy."

If a woman and February 24 is your birthday, your love for effects probably is responsible for your devoting a great deal of thought to your personal appearance. An ability to think quickly and to say witty things should make you an entertaining conversationalist. You are apt to retain your popularity just so long as you refrain from trying to mix business with friendship. Your promotional propensities may gain you a great deal of prominence in church, social or business circles. You are probably well-qualified to assume the role of a political or social welfare leader. As a radio commentator, or artist, singer, musician, teacher, lecturer, demonstrator or interior decorator you may be highly regarded and well paid. There is apparently very little chance of your marriage being a failure or not coming up to your most sanguine expectation.

The child born on February 24, may be a far more sensitive, high-strung youngster, than its parents, teachers or playmates realize. What is likely to be often mistaken for an attitude of indifference may be in reality shyness or timidity, so care must be exercised not to misjudge children born on this date.

If a man and February 24 is your natal day, your greatest fault may be a reluctance to do what few people will do for you—blow your own horn. You must put your best foot forward if you expect your ability to be recognized.

Americans Keep Shirts on So Bolo Riot Attempts Go Sour

BY WESTBROOK FEGLER

New York—It was interesting to watch the communist riot leaders perform in the crowds around Madison Square Garden during the meeting of Hitler's anti-Americans.

The communists themselves hold meetings of exactly the same kind, but this was Hitler's night to howl, so they turned out to picket, as they say. Picketing is their preparation for rioting, but they failed because the police were superb and the crowds were, in the main, impartial. A little resentful against both camps the crowds may have been and disgusted because their country must endure brawling between foreign armies or give up its own freedom. The Americans had no clear way to express themselves, but it was possible to catch remarks from noncombatants who stood in doorways out of the swirl and others who were caught in the scuffle on their way to the theaters, or just out for the air as usual.

In 48 street a chant began, "We demand the right to picket." A few voices at first, then a few more, and presently perhaps as many as fifty. The horse cops let them yell until the riot leaders began to press the crowd toward Eighth avenue and the garden. At a certain point the police moved against them, firmly but without tempers, and those in front had to give way. That started pressure toward the rear, and there was some bumping and stumbling as the people ran. A riot leader in a leather jacket ran a short way with the rest, then sensed the pressure had eased and pulled up.

Like a quarterback in a huddle, he passed the word, "The workers demand the right to the streets. Everybody yell. The workers demand the right to the streets. Come on, now." And then, in a loud voice, "The workers demand the right to the streets." A few voices, including some women's voices, took it up. "The workers demand the right to the streets," and the tide set in against the cops once more.

The police were elastic. They let them advance a little, then moved them back. Occasionally they would let through a truck or taxi which, with horn squawking, would cut a swath. The police seemed to be thinking of the danger of a stampede and a miniature Guadalajara in New York, for each repulse was executed with restraint. If they had really charged, the people in the rear, and women everywhere in the crowd, might have been trodden down like Mussolini's invincible black shirts in their immortal advance to the rear in Spain.

The Idea Of Ferocity
The news pictures of these things, although authentic, give an exaggerated idea of the ferocity of the struggle. If you poke a policeman and he can reach you to poke you back, you probably will go down. Some people fall just from losing their footing in a mass movement. That happens in football crowds sometimes, and a couple of customers actually were trampled to death in a minor Guadalajara at a ball game a few years ago as the crowd in the bleachers scurried to escape a summer shower.

The communist riot leaders affect the leather or cloth zipper-jacket and hatlessness. That is their uniform. An overcoat would encumber a riot leader in running away after promoting a fatal mixup. His mission is only to start the riot, to cue off his squad on their various chants and rushes.

The innocent bystanders, or the rank and file in the forward rows, then take the blows or the blows of the nightstick if the police are undisciplined and panicky, like the Chicago cops at the steel mill. The riot leader then is able to report a successful action with so many dead and so many wounded at the hands of capitalist brutality. They have an unlimited number of lives of innocent bystanders and rank-and-filers to sacrifice for such victories.

New York Police Really Do Good Job

The police of New York receive little credit for their efficiency and composure under conditions that would goad undisciplined men to bloody reprisals. Here they stood between the communists and the German bolsheviks, protecting each from the other. The communists knew that if the police should withdraw abruptly and say, "All right, you want to fight the nazis, so help yourself," there would be terrible disorder, with killing on both sides. They didn't want to fight the nazis, and they relied on the police to keep them apart. But still they booed the cops and yelled about their rights under a constitution which they and Hitler's bolsheviks both are trying to destroy. They lie down in the streets, they kick, bite and sometimes spit in the faces of decent American cops, but if a cop slams one with his fist or stick, what is police brutality again?

The jamming and shouting around the meeting of Hitler's bolsheviks on American soil were not general in

MICKEY IN 'HUCKLEBERRY FINN'

Mickey Rooney, who in the past has "stolen the picture" from many a famous star, comes into his own at last as a full-fledged star himself. Rooney makes his first solo starring appearance in the title role of Mark Twain's classic tale of joys and sorrows, "The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn." The picture opens Friday at the Rio theater where it will be shown for 5 days.

Based on J. Edgar Hoover's book of the same title, "Persons in Hiding" is the added feature on the same bill. The picture stars Lynne Overman, Patricia Morrison and J. Carrol Nash.

The Safety Sensation of 1939! THE NEW Firestone CHAMPION

The Only Tire Made with the NEW SAFETY-LOCK CORD BODY and NEW GEAR-GRIP TREAD...

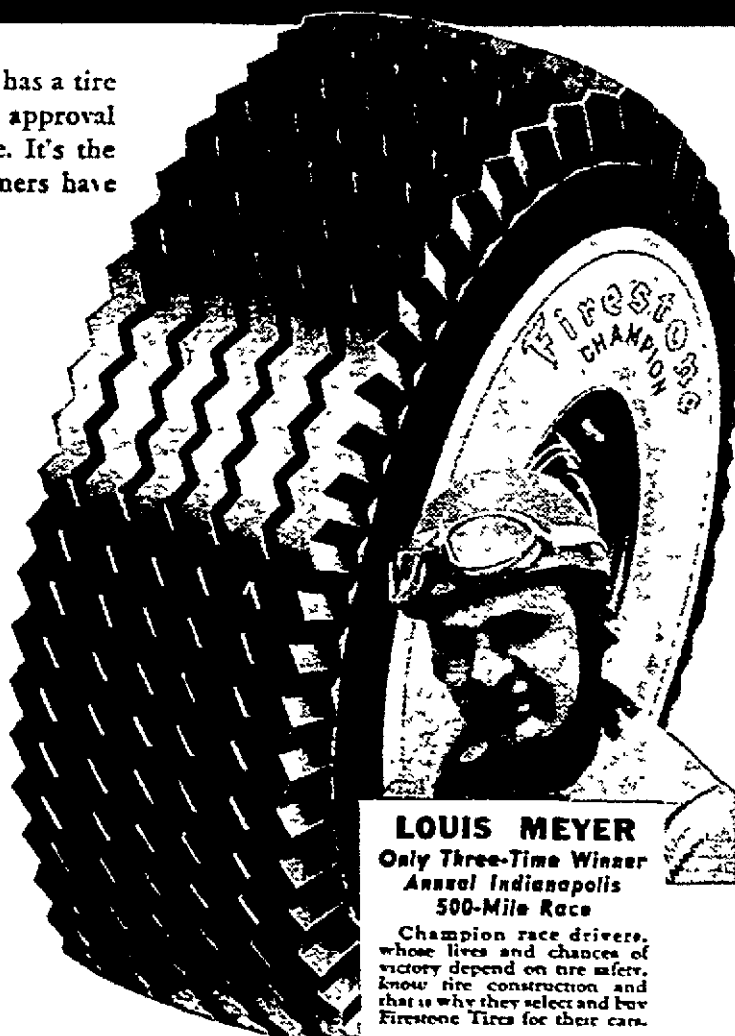

NEVER before in our experience has a tire met with such instant and unanimous approval as the new Firestone Champion Tire. It's the Safety Sensation of 1939! Our customers have started a word-of-mouth campaign that is making this the biggest selling tire we've ever had. Motor car manufacturers have been so impressed by its superior performance that they have adopted it for their 1939 models.

Why? Because the Firestone Champion Tire is an entirely new achievement in safety engineering.

Stronger Cord Body. This is accomplished first, by the use of a completely new type of tire cord called "Safety-Lock," in which the cotton fibers are more compactly interwoven to assure cooler running and provide greater strength. Then, the fibers in each individual cord, the cords in each ply and the plies themselves, are all securely locked together by a new and advanced Firestone process of Gum-Dipping which provides amazingly greater strength. And greater strength means greater safety.

More Non-Skid Mileage. The new Safety-Lock cord construction provides the extra strength needed for the use of the new, thicker, tougher, deeper Firestone Gear-Grip tread which delivers remarkably longer non-skid mileage. This sensational new tread is called "Gear-Grip" because of its unique design — it has more than 3,000 sharp-edged angles which grip the road with a sure-footed hold to protect against skidding and assure a safe stop.

Drive in today and equip your car with a new set of Firestone Champion Tires — the only tires made that are safety-proof on the speedway for your protection on the highway.

Firestone LIFE PROTECTOR The Tire within a Tire

This amazing new Firestone development makes a blowout as harmless as a slow leak.

Should a blowout occur the exclusive Firestone Safety-Valve holds sufficient air in the inner compartment to support the car until it is brought to a safe stop.

'The Late Christopher Bean'
Is First Major Production
In Senior High Auditorium.

ALL the thrill of a "first night" should be present Friday evening when the curtains part on "The Late Christopher Bean," the 3-act comedy which the junior class of Appleton High school will present for students and the general public. For this is the first major production to be given in the new auditorium and the first junior class play in many years. Miss Kathryn Fralisch, speech instructor, is in charge of direction and general stage management.

Wednesday was the all-important day of dress rehearsal. Stage crews put the finishing touches on the setting, and the cast polished cues, entrances and interpretation of lines. When the curtains part, the audience will see the dining room of Dr. Haggett's home, furnished in the "Mission" style of the early twentieth century. The entire action of the comedy takes place in this room during the course of a single day.

Cast of Characters
Dr. Haggett, the simple New England doctor, will be portrayed by Tom Nolan; his daughter Susan, by Bertha Symoneus; Abby, their maid, by Mary Ellen Notaras; Mrs. Haggett, who has social ambitions, by Ardys Peters; Ada, the 26-year-old daughter, by Mary Brandenburg; Warren Creamer, a personable young painter, by Donald Bohl; Talant, shrewd schemer from New York, by David Bliss; Rosen, the scrupulous art dealer, by Donald Smith; and Davenport, the cultured, elderly art critic, by William Mulen.

Robert Forster is stage manager, assisted by Donald Owen. Others on the crew are Adelbert Boettcher, Walter Lillge, John Boon, Robert Rossmessl and Harvey Friebe. The setting was designed by Billie Kolb, Anne Smith, Margaret Albrecht, Donald Joba, Glen Kitzmiller and Richard Fox.

In charge of properties are Genevieve Schaefer, Willette Wenzel and Ruth Rossmessl. Miss Ruth McKennan, speech instructor, is faculty adviser. Lighting effects will be under the direction of Jack Burroughs, biology instructor, and his student crew consisting of Bruce Cameron, Fritz Hervey, Curt Schoof, Lois Schultz, Fred Trezise and Ethel Rademacher.

Supervise Make-Up
Misses McKennan and Fralisch are supervising the make-up. The high school orchestra under the direction of J. Ray Williams will play before the drama begins and between the acts.

The advertising program was planned by Miss Albrecht and Burroughs. Harvey Gylt, biology instructor, and Robert Wilch are managing the ticket sale. Tickets for the production may be purchased from members of the juniors class or at Belling's drug store. Reservations must be made at Belling's.

Masque, Book Club
To Burlesque Play
About King Arthur

A burlesque on "Idylls of the King" by Tennyson, will be presented March 8 by members of the Masque and Book club before the Appleton High school assembly. Robert Johnson will be King Arthur in the play and Elizabeth Wood will be Guinevere. The part of the Lancelot will be portrayed by Fred Trezise and the role of Modred by Donald Bohl. David Bliss will be Merlin and Bertha Symoneus will take the part of a page. The setting of the burlesque will be in King Arthur's palace.

Miss Alice Petersen will direct the play and will be assisted by Virginia Grist. The costume committee includes Mary Lou Van Wyck, chairman, Constance Vaughn, Jeanne Ruhling and Naomi Neugebauer. Stage settings will be prepared by Robert Dettman, chairman, Jack Lally, John Boon, Curtis Schoof and Donald Dutcher.

Rummage Sale, Armory, Sat., Feb. 25, 9 A. M. Chas. O. Boer Auxiliary.

Because the voting was so close, five instead of the usual four best loved girls in the senior class were presented Wednesday night at Lawrence college's annual colonial banquet. In powdered wigs and frills, and carrying colonial bouquets, they entered the banquet room at Brookside hall last night dancing the minuet. Until then their identities had been a secret. They are Miss Betty Morrison, Elmwood Park, Ill., Miss Mary Forest, West Allis, Miss Janet Weber, Winnetka, Ill., Miss Betty Ann Johnson, Mayville, Wis., and Miss Esther Fritz, Milwaukee. Miss Marian Humleker, Fond du Lac, one of last year's best loved, gave a toast to this year's winners, and Miss Morrison made the response. Music for the minuet was provided by a conservatory trio composed of Edwin Shannon, Appleton, violinist, Elwin Wiensand, Appleton, cellist, and Milton Nelson, Clintonville, pianist. ## Charles Broughton Candidate for Top Office of Elk Lodge

Prospects that a Wisconsin Elk may become the grand exalted ruler of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks loomed today when announcement was made by Thomas F. McDonald, Marshfield, president of the Wisconsin State Elks association, of the progress being made in support of the candidacy of Charles E. Broughton, Sheboygan, for that high office. McDonald, who spoke to Appleton Elks at an "old-timers" meeting Tuesday night, made the announcement at Marshfield today, telling of the endorsement of the Sheboygan Elk leader for the national office by the state association and of encouragement for his candidacy from other sources.

Action of the state association followed that taken by Sheboygan lodge No. 239 in advocating C. E. Broughton for grand exalted ruler. At a "C. E. Broughton night" held recently to honor him upon his retirement from a place on the board of trustees, a resolution was unanimously adopted advocating his candidacy for the highest office of the lodge and solidifying the endorsement of the state association.

Broughton is a past exalted ruler of Sheboygan lodge and has served long as a trustee there. He is a past president of the Wisconsin Elks association and has won national prominence for his direction of aid for crippled children through the order.

American Indian Lore

BY PHEBE JEWELL NICHOLS
(Mrs. A. F. Lookaround)

forward-moving peoples of the world? "It is the Spirit that quickeneth."

Ideas On Education

Question: Why didn't the Indians take more kindly to the education offered them?

Answer: Benjamin Franklin's account of the Indian answer to the commissioners of Virginia who had offered to educate a few Indian youths gives one answer to the forgoing question. He quotes the Indians as follows: "We know that you highly esteem the kind of learning taught in those colleges and that the maintenance of our young men while with you would be very expensive to you. We are convinced therefore that you mean to do us good by your proposal, and we thank you heartily. But you, who are wise, must know that different nations have different conceptions of things; and you will therefore not take it amiss if our ideas of this kind of education happen not to be the same as yours. We have had some experience of it. Several of our young people were formerly brought up at the college of the northern provinces. They were instructed in all your sciences; but when they came back to us, they were bad runners, ignorant of every means of living in the woods, unable to bear either cold or hunger, knew neither how to build a cabin, take a deer, nor kill an enemy; spoke our language imperfectly; were totally good for nothing. We are, therefore, not the less obliged by your kind offer, though we decline accepting it; and to show our grateful sense of it, if the gentlemen of Virginia will send us a dozen of their sons we will take great care of their education, instruct them in all we know, and make men of them."

Indian parents of the present time have had experiences not unlike the one Franklin relates. The government's Indian boarding school system which took children, often forcibly, from their homes at the age of six and did not return them until the age of fourteen, thoroughly "Americanized" them, unable to speak their native language or doze at their native environment, is the reason why so many Indian parents opposed education. The present administration of Indian affairs is doing away with this system as rapidly as possible, substituting day schools where even partible and making community centers of these schools where parents may come and the native arts and crafts are being revived. This is happening in the southwest where the greatest numbers of Indians live.

For a good picture of Indian boarding schools, read the short stories of Oliver La Farge and particularly his last book, "The Enemy Gods." La Farge is an Indian and knows what he is writing about.

Garmets Always Ready

It was part of the woman's duty, whether for herself only or as a wife or mother, to see to it that garments for this purpose were always in readiness. Thus accoutered, carrying only the fire sticks and a packet of sacred tobacco the Indian man or woman, went forth to meet his God. He went to secure his "dream," his "orders from Above" wherein the Great Spirit speaks. Probably nowhere in the records of civilization can there be found a purer example of spiritual communion than this of the American Indian. Where and how far he traveled on his quest no one knows or needs to know. That he lifted up his face to his Maker, as did the psalmist of old and indeed was doing so in his Red Man's Content in the time of David, and waited for the still small voice" is undoubted. In his own way he communed, perhaps with a mind cluttered with the things of the flesh that stubbornly refused to go; perhaps with terrible fears and misgivings which held him long at his vigils; perhaps building his little votive fire and scattering the tobacco upon it in the hope its smoke would help in carrying his message; perhaps so imbued, so in accord, that even the fire was too material an aid. Always, sometimes at long last, returning in possession of his vision for he had "dreamed," had experienced the exaltation of intercommunion with the Great Spirit, and his soul was satisfied.

Is it any wonder, then, that the Indian has endured through the ages and that today in America his culture is seeing its renaissance and he is taking his place among the

Glimpses of Outagamie County Pioneers at Their Annual Meeting in Appleton Yesterday

The accompanying pictures were taken as 200 members of the Outagamie County Pioneer and Historical society gathered at the Masonic Temple in Appleton yesterday for the 67th annual meeting of the organization.

In the upper left hand corner, reading from the left, are Mrs. Ellen Heard and her sister, Miss Flora Kethroe, both of Appleton. Mrs. Heard will be 53 years old Sunday.

BY DON ANDERSON
Men and women who would get A's in a classroom examination on the history of Outagamie county, who never tire of hearing more of it because it is about their homeland, who work for the preservation of landmarks and who are anxious that momentous incidents of long-gone years be remembered held their 67th annual meeting yesterday in the Masonic temple.

It quite frequently happens that a member of the Outagamie County Pioneer and Historical society will not see a fellow member from one meeting to the next. And so it is that when Washington's birthday comes around it signals the day on which old friends meet, two day on which the pioneers and their families gather to refurbish associations and refresh memories of days which now are numbered in the pages of the county's history.

Two-hundred strong, they gathered yesterday for their annual meeting to elect officers, eat a meal together, and enjoy a public program. Many of them have accumulated a good many years and are stooped and white-haired, but their faces are strong and their interest in the society and its work constant and vigorous.

Good Time
They had a good time. During the dinner they visited, amiably and leisurely. Whenever there was a lull in afternoon proceedings they would see groups of them, their heads together, smiling and chatting happily. Men who grew up with the county exchanged rigors. Women no longer young, traded narratives of an era that knew no radio stations or bank nights.

Fred L. Holmes, of Madison, a lawyer by profession and a writer of books about Wisconsin by avocation, was the speaker at the afternoon meeting.

Holmes, whose recent book "Aluring Wisconsin" received considerable attention in this vicinity, told the pioneer society members that "Wisconsin has been too modest about her scenery and Wisconsin people know too little of their state's history and beauty."

He complimented the members on their efforts in keeping alive the history of the county and declared that only by educating Wisconsin people to the state's pre-eminence in both topographical beauty and personal achievement will they realize how fortunate they are.

Wisconsin Differs
Wisconsin is "unlike any other state in the union" in that it has two distinct geological areas, Holmes said, the southwestern portion was untouched by the glacier and the remaining glaciated regions.

The towering bluffs in the southwestern part of the state are remnants of what was once a lofty mountain range, the Madison author said. Most of the range, which stretched across the state, was leveled by the glacier, he stated.

"The vegetation in southwestern Wisconsin is distinctly different than in other portions. In the hot sands of that area you will find cactus growing in the summer. Geologists say it is a remnant of the era when this country was torrid and botanists say buffalo from Texas carried the cactus seed there on their hoofs."

The Madison lawyer-author dipped back into the history of the free public school system and orphanage institutions which first operated in Wisconsin, and sketched the

Forecast Warmer Weather Friday

Occasional Snow Expected in Appleton And Vicinity

With a rise in the temperature today came a blustering snowstorm buffeted about by a strong wind. The snow was reported drifting in the county but roads were all open and will remain so unless the storm grows more serious. Driving conditions were hazardous because of the layer of snow on the ice-covered streets.

The thermometer reached a 24-hour low at 12 o'clock last night when it registered three above zero, according to charts at the Wisconsin Michigan Power company. By noon today it had moved to 18 above as registered on the thermometer atop the Post-Crescent roof.

Mostly cloudy tonight and Friday with occasional light snow and warmer weather was the forecast issued for this area today by the Milwaukee bureau.

Coldest temperature in the last 24-hours was recorded at Park Falls where the thermometer registered eight below zero.

clusion of fourth class cities, expansion of payments to benefit viaries, and enlarged contributions by policemen and cities.

Joseph Klueschky, Milwaukee police chief, and president of the chiefs of police association, said policemen compared unfavorably with other employees in their treatment.

"In Milwaukee, I'll admit the city pays $3 to every $1 contributed by a policeman," Klueschky said. "But while other city employees get an average of 114 days off a year, the police only get 50 days off. The 64 more days they work more than pays for the $320,000 the city transfers from the general to the pension fund."

For average city employees over the state, Klueschky asserted the average was 88 days, to a police average of 46 days.

R. S. Payne, chief of police of Wisconsin Rapids, a fourth class city (population under 10,000), said higher police standards now since the law was first passed in 1907 justified equal treatment of fourth class cities.

A representative of Shorewood and Whitefish Bay police, A. J. Steinhilber, Milwaukee, said the pension fund acted as compulsory saving and compulsory insurance. He said no attempt should be made to include police and firemen with other city employees in a general pension scheme.

This idea was advocated by opponents of the bill, who said the failure of the police fund to attain an actuarial basis, made it unsound and a burden on the taxpayers.

F. M. McMillin, secretary of the League of Wisconsin Municipalities, urged the committee to postpone any action pending a survey of 20 Wisconsin cities by an actuary to discover their liabilities under their old police and fire pension funds.

McMillin said the bill would result in higher property taxes and greater governmental costs.

H. O. Wolfe, village of Shorewood, attacked provisions allowing retirement at half pay after 22 years of service. He said men in their prime were taking advantage of the law.

Parking Violator Doubts Guilt; Fine Is 50 Cents Higher

C. W. Cook, 1012 N. Harriman street, didn't know whether he was guilty of violating the city 60-minute parking law when he appeared before Judge Thomas H. Ryan in municipal court this morning. Judge Ryan took the testimony of the arresting officer, found Cook guilty, and instead of assessing the usual fine of $1 and costs, fined the motorist an extra 50 cents.

Three other motorists were fined $1 and costs each for violating the city parking ordinance. They were Walter Elder, 1714 W. Winnebago street; Mrs. Ted Vander Putten, 427 E. Fremont street; and Henry Skell, 130 E. Fremont street.

Washington More Than Statesman, Professor Says

Dr. Cummings Is Speaker On Neenah High School Program

Neenah—Prefacing his lecture on the "Life of George Washington" with a plea for honoring the traditions of the nation, Dr. Richard O. Cummings, assistant professor of history at Lawrence college, outlined the six phases of the life of the first president during a Washington day assembly program at Neenah High school Wednesday.

The six phases were Washington as a student, surveyor, soldier, farmer, father and statesman. Cummings said that Washington was an excellent student and at 17 years of age he was a surveyor for the estate of Lord Fairfax and later official surveyor for Virginia. As a soldier, "Washington" was called Cincinnati, possessing extraordinary qualities of leadership, persistence and was able to outwit spies and enemies. Washington was a progressive farmer, using crop rotation and fertilization, and he was one of the first to build ice houses and green houses in this country.

Although Washington had no children, he treated his wife's children as his own. As a statesman, Washington believed in the policy of isolation from foreign affairs and unity of the people of the nation. He didn't believe in political parties.

Ensemble Plays
During the program, the high school students sang under the direction of Lester Loehke, played two selections, "Melody" by Jules Reynard and "Praeludium" by J. S. Zamecnik. Members of the ensemble were Zephia Armstrong, Herbert Merrill, Royden Ginnow, Robert Newcomb, Lois Fromm, Marjorie Thomas, Armin Schultz, Geraldine Schultz, Esther Kitzke, Dorothy Metz and Florence Kramer.

Constance Pfirng read a selection, "Why Are They Stars?" Edith Steffenhagen, Laurence Ward and LaRaine Johnson sang "Yankee Doodle" and "America the Beautiful." Thea Rausch accompanied at the piano. Ruth Cannon was chairman of the program.

The new public address system which was purchased by the students through a subscription campaign was dedicated. Members of the committee were Dan Schmidt, Harlan Hesselman, Betty Hardt, Charles Kettering, Al Muench and Susan Kimberly.

Neenah—The Badgers gained a tie for first place in the Neenah Junior High school intramural basketball tournament Wednesday afternoon when they scored a 10 to 6 victory over the Wildcats. ## Three Grade Schools Sponsor Washington Birthday Programs

Menasha—The birthday of George Washington was observed Wednesday at the three public grade schools of the city with appropriate programs. At the Jefferson school the Washington program opened with two songs by the kindergarten children. They were "George Washington's Birthday" and "Our Flag."

Carmen Kuester gave a recitation "George Washington." A group reading, "Washington's Birthday," was given by Norman Gillies, Helen Kellett, George Highdudis and Janet Scanlon. Edith Peterson recited "The Vision of Betsy Ross." Four youngsters, Violet Rhode, Merritt Tourillotte, Donald Berger and Ray Olson, sang "Washington." Kenneth Ste. Marie recited "The Grandson of a Veteran." Mary Catherine Scholl presented a dance.

Sixteen youngsters sang "The Flag." They were Patty Tremmel, Janet Scanlon, Duane Tourillotte, Norman Gillies, Bobby Herman, Kenneth Doyle, Walker Fuiney, Ronald Bredweiser, Kenneth Kietz, Rosemary Gustman, Helen Kellett, Loraine Rohde, Billy Buksyk and Ronald Peotter.

In a play, "Washington and the Cherry Tree," Ray Winchester played Mr. Washington, Douglas Wiatrowski played the gardener and Carlton Springer played the role of George. Fifth grade children gave a play, "Star Spangled Banner," while the third grade children gave a "George Washington drill." The fourth grade children gave a story, "George Washington," while the sixth grade students dramatized "In Washington's Day." The sixth grade also sang "Alliegence" in three parts.

The third grade pupils gave a song, "Little George Washington." The pupils of the fifth grade gave the poem, "The Little Boy."

Dunant's appeal stirred the Société Genevoise d'Utilité Publique to action and the Comité International de la Croix-Rouge resulted. National committees were organized in 1863 and next year representatives of 26 governments met and produced the Geneva Convention which laid down the principles the Red Cross has followed ever since.

Thiede will judge the contest.

Mrs. Wilson Follows Advice of 'Friend'; Cancels Bremen Trip
Washington—Friends said today Mrs. Woodrow Wilson had cancelled a scheduled South American cruise on the German liner, Bremen, last Saturday because "a good friend" of the late wartime president advised her not to go.

The friend told Mrs. Wilson, it was explained, that although the cruise around the horn was arranged by an American travel agency, there might be some misunderstanding if Mrs. Wilson travelled on a Nazi ship.

No other boat was making the same cruise so Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Edwin T. Meredith, wife of the secretary of agriculture in her husband's cabinet and a frequent traveling companion, returned to Washington.

Change in Federal Farm Price Plans Believed Probable

New Policies Seen if Efforts to Gain World Cooperation Fail

Washington—A change in administration farm price policies was forecast in authoritative circles today if American efforts to promote international cooperation to boost commodity prices fail.

The administration is attempting, by means of informal discussions, to get major wheat and cotton producing nations to join in conferences to discuss marketing and price problems.

To date these efforts have borne little fruit. A committee representing the wheat nations is meeting in London now in an attempt to agree on an agenda for a proposed conference.

President Roosevelt and Secretary Wallace have suggested such conferences might adopt export quotas under which world markets would be divided "equitably" among all producing countries. This would make it possible to eliminate price-cutting and export-dumping policies.

Present farm price policies have had the effect, government economists said, of holding domestic as well as world prices of cotton and wheat at levels higher than they otherwise would be. They cite commodity loan programs which give farmers the privilege of withholding crops from the market by placing them under government loans. The loans have been set at levels higher than market prices.

Foreign as well as domestic producers of these crops have benefited, it was said. Failure to obtain agreements of other countries to participate in conferences most likely would result, it was said, in administration recommendations to Congress that the law be changed to permit loan rates below current market prices.

Coupled with such recommendations probably would be suggestions Congress provide some other means of augmenting farmer income.

Three Possible Plans
Secretary Wallace outlined today three possible plans for dealing with the large surplus of American cotton and then indicated he favored some means of subsidizing exports.

The administration's farm chief appeared before the senate agriculture committee as it began public hearings on several bills dealing with the cotton surplus.

Wallace said there were three possible ways of dealing with the surplus problem:

1. To continue the present loan program and find some way to place American cotton in world markets "on a competitive basis."

2. A program of increasing cotton growers' income so they would give up government loans and permit a large amount of cotton to flow into domestic and foreign channels.

3. A plan for fixing a high price on domestic cotton that would let the surplus flow into world markets for what it would bring.

Recalling that cotton growers had voted to continue the present control and benefit program with its mandatory loans, Wallace said any change this year in loans "might be breaking faith with growers."

Nevertheless, Wallace said, continuation of loans required a definite control over production.

Jones and Representative Hope (R-Kans.), ranking minority member of the committee, questioned Edward E. Kennedy, Farmers' Union leader, about the possibility that the cost-of-production theory would ruin the small or tenant farmer.

LAST NIGHT'S RESULTS
Elm Tree 46, Y. M. C. A. 30.
Wire Works 31, Town Taxi 23.
Lutz Ice Co. 23, Merchants 22.

TWO upsets were registered during City-Y. M. C. A. league games at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium last night when Lutz Ice Company cagers downed Merchants by a 29 to 22 score and Wire Works trimmed Town Taxis by a 31 to 23 margin. Elm Tree Bakers maintained their championship pace by handing Y. M. C. A. a 46 to 30 defeat. The games were advanced from tonight because of the amateur tournament at Kimberly.

Playing methodical, deadly basketball, the Icemen couldn't be stopped. They took an 8 to 6 lead at the end of the first quarter and held a thin 13 to 12 advantage at halftime, slipping behind at the third quarter post, 15 to 13. Held scoreless in the third stanza, the Lutz quint went to work for a 29 to 22 victory. Herbie Lutz sparked the winners with 11 points while Paulie came through with 11 points for the losers.

Wire Works took the measure of the strong Taxi squad with Zimmerman scoring 13 points to lead the way. McKeefer counted 10 points and an early lead which never was threatened.

Playing their usual brilliant style of ball, Elm Tree Cagers held the Y. M. C. A. squad in check until the third quarter when Ken Westberg and Doug Ogilvie got started and potted a few from the field. The "Y" lads got one point in the third quarter and three in the second. Sellers and Krause were the best offensive stars.

Wyatt, Williams and Tabor Most Promising A. A. Rookies

TED WILLIAMS
Minneapolis to Red Sox

BY DILLON GRAHAM
NEW YORK (AP) - Brooklyn bawled the American association's pitching prize and the Boston Red Sox grabbed its hitting leader. But the loopy sent up more rookies than any other A.A. circuit and there should be many other diamonds in the rough.

Wyatt, Williams, the Milwaukee veteran, may finally be ripe. He's been hopping in and out of the American league for almost a decade, hurling for Detroit, Chicago and Cleveland. Perhaps the National league will be his dish.

Wyatt, a tall right-hander, in 1938 pitched 26 complete games, had nine shutouts and won 23 while losing 7. He struck out 208 and had an earned run average of 2.37.

Ted Williams, Minneapolis' 20-year-old outfielder, hogged most of the Association's batting honors. The Californian banged out a fancy .366 figure with the hickory and polished up his fielding. With Ben Chapman gone, the Red Sox very likely will find a garden spot for him.

Another Minneapolis graduate, James Tabor, is slated to take Elny Higgins' old job at third base. Tabor's good fielder, but the Red Sox didn't go for his hitting last spring. The .330 mark the youngster authored in 1938 probably will erase that doubt. Tom Irwin of Milwaukee may not break into the Boston infield but he'll probably be kept as accident insurance.

The Cleveland Indians hope that Oscar Higgins will end their search for a second baseman. The Milwaukee rookie is the fancy fielder. Cleveland wants but Grimes may have trouble dislodging the heavy-hitting Odell Hale. Pitchers Bill Zuber and Ken Jungles, who did

Time, Distance Mean Little To Badger Ace Pole Vault

MADISON - Milton Padway, burly University of Wisconsin pole vaulter, set some kind of a record Saturday when he won his event in a dual meet between Wisconsin and Iowa at Iowa City in the afternoon, then dashed to Champaign, 255 miles away, arriving there in time to enter and win the pole vault at the Illinois relays, with a vault of 13 feet 6 inches.

Padway was defending his Illinois relays vaulting championship, won in 1938, when he set the present meet record of 13 feet 10 inches. The Badger vaulting ace felt that he ought to defend his title.

The directors are Avelit Thoms, Ralph Conroy, Lester Stevens, Elmer Eder, Edward Bailey, Theodore Lamkins and Henry Heiderman. The club has about 100 members and is increasing rapidly. The enrollment is expected to reach the 200 mark by May 15 when planting of pheasants and fish will begin.

BUY DOG NOW

BY OZARK RIFLEY
With more hunting coming along each year and with more game available because of our local, state, and national propagation methods, there is each fall a greater demand for good hunting dogs. The time to get them is not a few days before the hunting season but right now if the dogs are to be owned, not hired.

The sportsman who wants to hunt with dogs must have some natural love of the animals and should be master of his own. It is only common sense to take the dog for personal training and development long enough before the season opens so as to have ample opportunity to develop an understanding of and control over the dog.

Most dog owners and trainers believe that it is wise to get a dog before it is set in its ways. This may be any time under a year old and can be later, but a dog taken when it is from four to seven or eight months old can be more easily drilled by the average person who lacks the professional touch.

Look Over The Breeds
Consequently if you are thinking seriously of buying your own dog for hunting purposes, begin looking over the young dogs that are available. Be deliberate and thorough in your selection. You will have money by buying now, and you will have plenty of time to study the characteristics of the sporting dogs and to delve into their blood lines. First make up your mind as to what you want in a dog, and then look over the breeds which offer the qualities you desire. Then examine a selected list of individual dogs in the breeds because it is usually the dog and not the breed which makes for personal satisfaction.

The sporting dogs are well defined in their class. Their sizes and general characteristics are well known, and the amount of care needed to keep them in shape is common knowledge. In the dog group any section should offer good specimens of Chesapeake Bays, pointers, setters (English, Irish, Gordon), spaniels, and the various retrievers.

Think over the possibilities, then get a dog that has the looks and qualities you desire and train him to understand you. By the time the hunting season opens you will have something on the fellows who didn't plan as well, and you will get birds and pleasure denied them.

Thirteen basketball teams from around the valley are taking part in the meet which will continue through Friday, Saturday, Sunday afternoon and evening. Three games will be played each evening while Sundays schedule calls for two games in the afternoon and championship games in the evening.

Mace Brown Finally Included In 'Who's Who in Baseball'

BY SID FEDER
NEW YORK (AP) - Mace Brown has made the grade. It took one of the nearest jobs of relief pitching since fireman Willy Moore was saving the Yankees a dozen years back, but the Pittsburgh Pirates' right-hander finally has been included in the new "Who's Who in Baseball."

For three years, Mace wore a track from the Buc bullpen to pitching-box with never a tumble. He was a name on the roster and in the box scores, but never rang the bell in the goldplated directory of the diamond. Last season, he broke a record by going to work in 51 games. That turned the trick—he's in the new book.

For that matter, so is Don Heffner, the fast little infielder. He had to be shipped to the St. Louis Browns to make it, after getting

TRUCKERS ARE GLOOMY
Clintonville - Friday evening the Clintonville High School Truckers basketball team plays host to the invading Neenah Red Rockets who at the present time are knocked with the Shawano Indians for first place in the Western division of the Northeastern conference. Both the Indians and the Rockets have one defeat charged against them each team defeating the other one. In other words the Clints can expect to find Neenah to be a discourteous guest and go home with a victory.

In addition to the fact that the Rockets are fighting it out for the conference championship, they lost last week to St. Mary of Menard by an overwhelming score and they won't be taking any chances of getting bumped off and thrown out of first division by the lowly Trucks. The Red Rockets already hold one victory over the Clints in basketball this season and that game was a walk away for Neenah so the Trucks will really have to play ball Friday night in order to at least keep the score close.

TAKE FULL SQUADS
Neenah - Neenah High school's cage quintet, holders of a share of first place in the Northeastern Wisconsin conference, returns to conference competition Friday night when it travels to Clintonville to clash with the Trucks.

The Rockets' second team will battle the Clintonville reserves in the preliminary. Coach Ole Jorgensen and Ivan Williams, assistant mentor, will take their full squads to the final out-of-town conflict. The Rockets will have only one conference game remaining after the Clintonville game. They meet Menasha here March 4.

Captain Dan Schmidt, center, has regarded as a lead in point-getting. He has counted 115 points, Harlan Hesselman, lanky junior, guard, closely trails his captain with 112 points. Warren Kettering, guard, is third with 65 points, while Leo Peterson, forward, has counted 49 points. Buxton Kettering, forward, has made 47 points, while Harold Hackstock, forward, has counted 19.

The Rockets already have counted a victory over the Trucks, counting a 43 to 16 win here Jan. 6. Coach Jorgensen said that the Trucks would be tougher than the Rockets would expect in view of the previous wallowing.

His probable starting cast will be composed of Hackstock and Peterson, forwards; Schmidt, center, and Warren Kettering and Hesselman, guards.

3RD PLACE AT STAKE
Kaukauna-Third place in Northeastern conference play will be the aim of Kaukauna High school cagers as they invade New London tomorrow night. The Bulldogs hold a half game margin over the Little-men, which a Kaukauna victory will more than overcome. Tuesday the conference season will close here against Clintonville.

Offensive measures and free throw practice have occupied the Kaws all week. scrimmages with the reserves is slated for this afternoon, with the team leaving at 4:30 Friday afternoon for New London. The Bees also will travel, engaging the New London second stringers in a 7 o'clock preliminary.

Those on the first squad making the trip are Bill Alger, Carl Gior-dana, Junior Swedberg, Paul Koch, Joe Bloch, Don Bielek, James Sander, Bill Hesselman, Willis Banquette and Bob Derus. The Bruins lineup will find Koch and Bielek at forward, Alger at center, and Gior-dana and Swedberg at guard. # COMMON SENSE CONSERVATION

By L.H. KINGSTON

GREEN BAY—Senator Ingram has introduced bill 198 which would license the hook and line fishermen in Wisconsin. Under his proposal no person 18 years of age or over and under 70 who has resided in this state for a period of one year shall take, catch or kill fish, or fish for fish with hook and line or rod and reel unless a resident fishing license has been duly issued him.

The great majority of anglers in this state are hoping that this bill will be enacted into the law. There is hardly a hunting and fishing club in the state that has not endorsed this proposal. The conservation congress composed of committees from every county has in every instance unanimously favored this proposed law.

The hook and line fisherman is recognized as the only sportsman in Wisconsin who does not have to pay his share toward the maintenance of his sport. The hunter has been buying his hunting license for years without a murmur. The rod and reel fisherman does his share, the trapper pays to trap but the cane pole fisherman gets away scot free.

Common Sight
It is a common sight in the summer to see dozens of cars—big new ones—coming down the road carrying a bundle of cane poles that looks like next winter's supply of fire wood. Watch them out on the lake in a boat, poles spread out like spider legs, each pole baited with a live minnow and you will see each one of them catch more fish than six rod and reel fishermen. Yet the rod and reel man does not.

This is an injustice to sportsmanship. Here we are trying to get people to go fishing for fun and not for meat on the stringer, yet our present rod and reel license law penalizes the man who gives the fish a fighting chance.

I know there are a good many anglers who feel assured that the fight is won, that the bill is bound to pass this legislature and be signed by the governor. After all the votes that have been taken among sportsmen and all the work that has been done by conservationists it does seem that there is little question as to what is in the minds of the citizens of Wisconsin on this question. But we have been disappointed before and it may happen again. Right now before the showdown we should redouble our efforts in behalf of the hook and line license law.

Galento-Feldman Bout Postponed

One of Miami's Few Over-cast Days Delays Heavyweight Scrap

Miami, Fla., (U)—Tony Galento, brought into better fighting trim by a few extra bottles of beer, declared himself ready to go into the ring tonight and kayo Abe Feldman in masterful style.

Promoters of the heavyweight scrap, successful in selecting the only overcast day Miami has seen recently, postponed the fight from last night.

Two-Ton Tony was undisturbed by the delay.

"I'll knock Feldman kicking and then they can bring on Joe Louis, if he will fight me," he modestly announced.

Promoter Mike Jacobs, who owns the rights to the heavy-weight champion's services, is here to witness the scrap and, it is loudly whispered, to announce a Louis-Galento crowd-drawing style.

It is expected the crowd will total nearly 15,000 and the gate will range between $25,000 and $30,000.

Tony weighed in at 223 and Feldman's 186.

While the Galento-Feldman fight was the main go, fans expected to get most of their money's worth out of a non-title 10-round event between Solly Krieger, the National Boxing association middle-weight champion, and Ben Brown of Atlanta.

Sewer Project At Clintonville To Get WPA Fund

Common Council Discusses Question of Taxes on Airport

Clintonville — A $46,987 WPA sewer project has been approved for this city by the federal government, according to a telegram from United States Senator Alexander Wiley, which was read at an adjourned council meeting Tuesday evening. This project will include storm sewers on E. Madison and Maize streets besides lines on Second and other streets. Work is expected to begin soon, as the woodworking project is nearly completed.

The question of payment of taxes on the Clintonville Municipal Airport was discussed with Town Chairmen Martin Steenbock of Larrabee and Joe Keller of Matteson, who met with the aldermen. Eighty acres of the airport property lie in the town of Larrabee while 40 acres are located in the town of Matteson with about $40 taxes. The city officials do not think it necessary to pay taxes on property used for municipal purposes, but the township officials want the taxes paid. City Clerk S. J. Tillson was authorized to take up the matter with the Wisconsin State Tax commission. The Clintonville airport was completed and dedicated last November.

Appointing Constables

There being no constable in the city for the last few months, four applications for the two positions were received Tuesday evening by the council. Leonard Manser, a former constable, has been appointed to the police department and Earl Grimes has moved from the city. Applicants for the positions were Frank Hamilton, James Beggs, Wayne Hagen and Harry Barker. An informal ballot was taken with Hamilton and Beggs receiving the most votes, after which Mayor A. A. Washburn appointed them to serve until April 30, 1939. The appointments were confirmed by the council. The offices will be filled at the spring election.

Dr. Robert Braun, city health officer, reported on conditions in Clintonville, stating that an epidemic of influenza is sweeping the state with several cases here at present. The disease is said to be in a light form. There are numerous cases of whooping cough, which is highly contagious. Dr. Braun stated that there are no cases of smallpox here now, although an epidemic of the disease prevailed during the last several months.

The public property committee was instructed to ascertain how to dispose of the police motorcycle to the best advantage. The machine has been used very seldom since a squad car was added to the department equipment.

The aldermen approved the recommendation of the police and fire committee for the purchase of 500 feet of double jacket fire hose at 77 cents per foot, 500 feet of sewer hose at 80 cents per foot, and a nozzle at $5.50. Bids on the equipment had been opened Feb. 17 after being advertised.

WHEN KIDNEY TROUBLE CAUSES YOU TO GET UP NIGHTS

When Bladder is Irritated When Passage is Difficult When Backache Results Flush Poisonous Waste and Acid From Kidneys GAIN IN HEALTH

If you aren't feeling just right—tired, nervous, have dizzy spells and occasional backache—study your kidneys and learn more about yourself.

Through the delicate filters of the kidneys, acid and poisonous waste are drawn from the blood and discharged from the body thru the bladder—sometimes these filters are less active than they should be because of excess poisonous waste and kidneys do not function properly—they need harmless stimulation. One reliable medicine, highly effective and inexpensive is GOLD MEDAL HARMER OIL CAPSULES. This grand medicine has been helping people for 50 years—to relieve their aches and pains by helping conditions caused or aggravated by excess uric acid or other circulating poisons such as is so often the case with sciatica, neuritis, neuralgia, lumbago and rheumatism.

So if you have such symptoms of kidney trouble as backache, nervousness, getting up two or three times during the night—scanty, burning or smarting passages—leg cramps—moist palms or puffy eyes—get a 35 cent package of this grand and harmless diuretic at any modern drugstore—it starts the first day on its errand of helpfulness.

Don't be an EASY MARK and accept a substitute—Ask for Gold Medal Hamer Oil Capsules—right from Hamer in Holland. GET GOLD MEDAL—the original—the genuine. Look for the Gold Medal on the box—35 cents.

FOR YOU -- 1500 BANG-UP BARGAINS AS WE HONOR THE FOUNDER OF A & P

It's Founder's Week at A&P. And each year on this occasion we honor our Founder — George Huntington Hartford — by giving our customers the greatest array of values at our command. For it was he, who 'way back in 1859, made front page news by dealing a sharp blow to the "high living costs of those days." How? By his far-sightedness in bringing Tea, Coffee and Spices direct from foreign lands to the cupboards of his customers; saving them money by buying direct, by eliminating in-between profits, by lower handling costs, by taking a very small profit for his services. Today, as back through the years, the homely ideals of this pioneer chain store merchant who believed implicitly in selling fine foods at common-sense prices, serve as our creed in our daily relations with the 6,000,000 families who prefer to shop at A&P. Through new and more efficient methods of bringing foods from producer to consumer — shortening the gap, so to speak, from farm and orchard to your pantry, (reducing handling costs and distribution expenses at the same time) we are raising living standards and reducing living costs. More families are spending less and getting more good foods because they choose to come to A&P. To you we say: "Come to A&P. Share in this great bargain event—Founder's Week. 1500 bang-up bargains. Big husky savings on everything. Come!"

Julius Fredrick Rites
Held at Maple Creek
Maple Creek—The funeral of Julius Fredrick, 85, who died early Sunday was held from the home at 1:30 Tuesday afternoon with services conducted at Immanuel Lutheran church at 2 o'clock by the Rev. Imm. Boettcher. Burial was in the new Maple Creek cemetery. Bearers were William Frank, John Knapp, Raymond Anson, Theodore Hintze, Herman Stijchman, Lyle Reed. Two granddaughters, Elsie Fredrick and Florence Ponto, were flower girls.

Relatives from away who attended the funeral were: Mr. and Mrs. Walter Ziemer, Berlin; Mr. and Mrs. Adolf Hintz, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Ponto, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hintz, Mrs. Fred Reimer and family, Roy-alton; Mr. and Mrs. Louis Gruening, William Gruening, Bloomfield; Mr. and Mrs. Edw. Beckman and Bertha Beckman, Dale.

Among the many English words that have entered the Japanese vocabulary and remained almost intact is "Jimmie." Japanese believe it is a native word, having forgotten the original — "dilemma."

Spoiling a Husband Might Be Best Way to Hold Him

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Mix Dix—My husband and I have been married for nearly five years and are still romantically in love with each other and very happy. Nevertheless, I have a matrimonial problem that I want to ask about. It is this: I baby my husband. If he wants to step out of an evening I grab my hat and go with him. If he is tired and wants to snore on the couch I throw a rug over him, turn down the lights and read a book instead of complaining that I am lonesome and would enjoy a talk. If he brings home company for dinner it is all right with me. I open up another can of something and have a jolly dinner party. If he interferes with his pleasure, I let him. I want to do go hand and do his way. I put myself as much trouble as he does in trying to make myself attractive to him as I did before marriage. And so far my plan has worked out fine. There never was a kinder husband nor one who loved his home more. But my friends say I spoil him too much and so does my mother. That makes me wonder if I am making a mistake. What do you think?

DOROTHY DIX

Answer: According to the old proverb, the proof of the pudding is in the eating. The string, and inasmuch as your five-year plan of getting along with a husband amicably has worked out, so successfully it would be folly to change it. Better let well enough alone.

There are, of course, many schools of thought on how to manage a husband. Some wives believe that the proper thing to do is to tear a young husband all to pieces as soon as they get him and make him ever according to their own paper pattern. Other wives believe in the strong-arm method of clamping right down on a husband from the start and taking away from him all of his personal liberties and his pay envelope.

Others hold to the terrorist theory and believe that a wife best gets in her deadly work by nagging and making scenes or dissolving in tears so that her husband is so much afraid of her that he yes-mam's her and meekly does as he is bidden.

But while these strenuous methods of dealing with husbands appear to work as seen from the outside, there is abundant evidence to prove that they are really not so successful after all. Many a down-trodden husband avenges himself upon his oppressor by refusing to work to support her. And many a henpecked husband flees from the wife who makes him feel like a worm of the dust to some other woman who tells him how big and strong and wonderful he is.

Somewhat the soft-soap theory of dealing with husbands has never made a hit with the majority of married ladies. They think it a lack of spunk and intestinal fortitude for a wife to jolly her husband along and use as much tact in rubbing his fur the right way as she would her back if she had a job from which she could be fired if she didn't give satisfaction. Yet in reality the only way that any wife ever keeps her husband eating out of her hand is by putting angel's food in it.

Vinegar no more catches flies in marriage than it does elsewhere. If a husband stays in love with his wife, and still prefers her to all other women after the romance of courtship has died out it is because she has made life pleasant for him. She has kept him conscious of her love and admiration for him and shown that she has preferred his happiness above her own. If you look around at the middle-aged Darbys and Joans who are still all-in-all to each other you will invariably find that the wife babies her husband and caters to him.

So I think that spoiling a husband is just about the best way to hold him. Mighty few of us ever run away from an adorer.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am 22. For six years I have gone with one man. Ever since our mud-pie days it has been understood that we would some day marry and I have had very few dates with any one else. Now the time has come when we are to be married in six weeks and I have met a man, a stranger, with whom I have fallen violently in love. It thrills me just to look at him and I have lost all interest in my fiancé. Dread his coming to see me. Can't bear to think of my wedding, because my heart is not in it. What can I do? How can I break my engagement and embarrass my fiancé before all of our relatives and friends? But I don't want to marry James. Will this queer feel-

Keen Players Often Overbid In Slam Tries

BY ELY CULBERTSON

Some of the best bids seen at the bridge table have no practical value; that is, they do not actually produce points. I refer specially to certain slam tries. Often the nature of partner's holding is such that the invitation cannot be accepted and, in that case, instead of something having been gained, an additional risk has been incurred through raising the bidding level. Academically speaking, however, the mere fact that the slam try was made indicates a keen appreciation of possibilities. Consider today's hand:

North dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.
Match point duplicate.

NORTH		EAST
♠ 9 8 3 2	♥ 8 6	♠ K 4	♥ 7 3
♦ 10 9	♣ 10 9	♦ 7 6	♣ 5 4
♠ 10 6 5	♥ 10 5 4	♦ 8 7 4 2	♣ K 6 5 3

The bidding:
North 1♠, 2♣, 3♥, 4♠, 5♠, 6♠, 7♠.
East 1♠, 2♣, 3♥, 4♠, 5♠, 6♠, 7♠.

Let us analyze this bidding carefully. North's spade bid was a fully-placed light in respect to the conventional two and one-half tricks, but his good distribution and rebidable spade suit made his action correct. A pass would have been distinctly out of order with a hand as good as this. East's overall speaks for itself, as does South's bid of two hearts. North, of course, had to respect South's free bid as a one-round force, and the spade rebid needs no explanation. South naturally showed his other five card suit, and now North took the logical course of raising to four diamonds. South, instead of going to a minor suit game contract, grasped the opportunity to show his rebidable heart suit. His four heart bid at this point was eminently proper. Now North had a real decision thrust upon him. Since this was match-point duplicate, he had to consider the advisability of passing. North's hearts, even though he had poor trump support, he might have reasoned that his singleton club would protect South against an immediate force and that, therefore, a five card heart suit in partner's hand might be sufficient.

This reasoning, however, did not satisfy him completely. Playing against hearts, the defenders might first force dummy to ruff a club and later, after dummy's trumps were gone, might force declarer. Thus it seemed a great deal safer to play the hand at diamonds. But North was not entirely satisfied with a mere five diamond bid, either. Despite the fact that he had less than the conventional two and one-half heart tricks, North saw that there was a distinct chance of making a slam if South had certain cards for his bids. It was not at all impossible that South's holding should be something like:

NORTH		EAST
♠ 9 8 3 2	♥ 8 6	♠ K 4	♥ 7 3
♦ 10 9	♣ 10 9	♦ 7 6	♣ 5 4
♠ 10 6 5	♥ 10 5 4	♦ 8 7 4 2	♣ K 6 5 3

With such a hand, South would have bid just as he did bid. He would be afraid to use the 4-5 trump convention when holding two low clubs and a singleton spade, because a five or trump answer would be based on the spade and heart action would produce a slam that would be hopeless if North also had two clubs. There was only one way to suggest the possibility of a slam without actually obligating the partnership to reach it, and North found that course. He bid five clubs over four hearts! Considered independently, such a cue bid would be a gross overstatement of North's values, but North was not a bit worried that his partner would misunderstand. North had made a minimum rebid over South's two hearts and had given a minimum raise to three diamonds. That being so, it was inconceivable that North could have a very good hand, hence the present cue bid certainly would be discounted by South and taken over to indicate club control. If South read this as first round control, he certainly could not also depend on such excellent diamond support from North.

As it happened, North's shrewd five club bid went for naught because South did not actually have the cards that North hoped for. Nevertheless, North deserved credit for his very and at least no harm was done by the bid inasmuch as the normal five diamond contract still was reached and fulfilled without difficulty.

TOMORROW'S HAND
North dealer.
North-South vulnerable.

NORTH		EAST
♠ 9 8 3 2	♥ 8 6	♠ K 4	♥ 7 3
♦ 10 9	♣ 10 9	♦ 7 6	♣ 5 4
♠ 10 6 5	♥ 10 5 4	♦ 8 7 4 2	♣ K 6 5 3

Mr. Culbertson will discuss this hand in tomorrow's column.

Beauty and You

by PATRICIA LINDSAY

As soon as we sniff spring bursting through the ground, there is a tendency to discard winter clothes, open wide the windows, buy an Easter bonnet and a new bottle of perfume. Along with mother nature we yearn to take on fresh life and new beauty!

The heavier fragrances with which we have been annoying ourselves, during the confining months of winter, seem a bit overbearing once the first Spring breeze appears. We begin to sense the rich earthy smell of a deep green forest, wooded meadows and sunny days on hilltops by the sea—and no one of our winter loves seems to complement this particular mood. For it takes a special brew to give an aura to our "outdoor personalities."

Scent Makes Debut
A gay harbinger of the new season has found its way to my desk—a perfect mood-soother for the rest less fever! Its fresh, outdoorsy scent has a considerable dash of come-hither about it—enough to linger in the nostrils of your favorite man to remind him of you!

If you live in the country, or journey to it eagerly on weekends, this is for you as even its tantalizing name is suggestive of outdoor romance.

And no need to invest half your week's salary to test its loveliness, for in keeping with its fragrance, it comes bottled in a purse-size flask with a special leak-proof cap.

encased in pliskin for a price you and you can afford! If you fall in love with it, there are larger quantities and also a concentrated cologne in matching scent for after baths.

Other Scent
Of course, I don't imagine for a minute that every one of you will take this new fragrance to your heart the very minute you smell it—for women are as fickle as perfume brews! And each to her own preference, say I, so if you would like the names of other "tailored" brews (as well as the name of this new one) write for my list of "Perfumes for Outdoor Personalities." Enclose a self-addressed, 3-cent stamped envelope.

Seal With Bottles
If you do invest in a new perfume for spring, do so as many women do, and seal your other perfumes with adhesive tape. To preserve them until late autumn. Just wrap the adhesive tape around the stopper and throat of the bottle tightly and the evasive fragrance will be guarded. If you do not do this all will evaporate, much to your disappointment!

"Petrol" Cerebrates for Moods and Personalities," is very complete list of fragrances with their prices. Write for it care of this paper. A self-addressed, 3-cent stamped envelope must accompany your request otherwise the list cannot be sent to you.

Betty's case contrasts well with Geraldine's in last Monday's newspaper. It is the famous Green-Eyed Monster in a new disguise. Many families today are childless because the husbands are enslaved by this monster.

Case M-158: Betty L., aged 10, is an adopted child.
"My mother and I are good pals," she's smilingly confessed, "but I don't know what is wrong with my father."
"He seems very irritable when-ever he comes home. And then he loses his temper several times each week. Oh, it is awful. I don't like to see Mother's pictures of me when I was a baby, and she cried about it, and now has them patched together."

"Another time he tore up my new dress so I couldn't go to my Sunday school party. Mother sides with me, and we both are afraid of him when he gets angry like this."

"He blackened both of her eyes two weeks ago, and she had to wear colored glasses so the neighbors wouldn't know he beat her up."

"Dr. Crane, what makes him act like this?"
DIAGNOSIS:
This is an interesting case of parental jealousy. Betty's father had opposed his wife's adopting this little girl when she was 12-weeks old.

Four weeks later he came home one evening and without a word, walked over to his wife and hit her with his fist, blacking both eyes.

Then he packed his suitcase, and said he was through with her for good. She was left, crying and astonished, for she hadn't the slightest idea what had caused his outburst.

So she packed up and went home to her mother's with the newly adopted baby. Her husband apologized a few days later, and got her to return. He bought her a new living room suite and showered gifts on her.

Green Eyed Monster
At frequent intervals thereafter, however, he would have fresh outbursts of rage and jealousy. He broke three of Betty's dolls before she was old enough to go to kindergarten.

His emotional tantrums were not daily affairs. He was a fairly likable fellow most of the time. But when things went wrong, and a dozen minor irritations piled up, he would break out into a rage.

His wife is now 33 years of age, but he is 58. He feels, therefore, that she and Betty are teaming up against him. Betty shows her preference for her mother, which further angers her father.

He is also afraid of old age. Knowing that his wife is 15 years his junior, he has vague fears that she will no longer be interested in him, but may turn to younger men.

On top of these worries, he has a long standing case of venereal infection which has been resisting treatment. He is afraid he may lose his mind.

Why We Lose Temper
His retail business keeps him in front of the public all day long. There he must curb his temper and turn on a smiling countenance, regardless of his actual feelings.

If petty grievances and irritations arise, he must smile them off, at least till he gets home. Then he lets down. If his wife or daughter accidentally violate his whims, he explodes. His outburst is entirely disproportionate to the seriousness of their minor offense.

As I told his wife, don't pay so much attention to the outburst, but probe deeper. Get at fundamental psychological causes. Then try to remedy them.
So she and Betty are being more tactful and are making him feel younger and more necessary to their happiness. He is already showing marked signs of improvement. Always look beyond the symptoms to the basic causes, you wish to correct such conditions as this one.

Hunger Is Sometimes Cause Of Ailments Among Children

BY ANGELO PATRI

Health is the basis of good actions. That means that a healthy child will work better, behave better, learn more easily, cooperate with other folk more pleasantly, than an ailing child.

Many ailing children are hungry. They do not know it. They are tired and that makes them irritable. When one feels too tired to move a hand or foot and somebody demands, sharply, that this work be done right now, and done to perfection, the response is rebellious and ill-tempered. Grown ups make the same response under the same conditions.

Now a sturdy body, well supplied with good red blood, does not tire easily. In fact it is hard to tire it. It comes back after a few minutes rest in spite of fatiguing work. Action is a joy, a necessity. The greatest satisfaction is found in working, playing, accomplishing. Healthy children are happy and happy children are good children.

The basis of good health is nutrition. If a child can eat well, and digest well, he grows stronger with every passing day. But if he does not eat well, he must fail to grow stronger and instead grows weaker, more irritable, more helpless, more helpless. Most of the children who get into trouble are helpless children who need to be fed.

Disciplinary cases who trouble the schools usually are cured when their diet is corrected and supplied in generous amounts. The children who breakfast on coffee and bread cannot do good work. If at lunch time they get another piece of bread and a bit of herring or ham, they cannot stand up for the afternoon work. They cannot attend to the lessons, cannot summon the energy needed.

Feed these children three good meals a day and the change is magical. Their color changes; their weight increases; the expression in their eyes changes; their attitude changes. They begin to smile; they are friendly where they were indifferent, cooperative where they were rebellious. Good food makes all the difference between a bad child and a good one.

Feeding these children costs money and requires strict attention to duty on the part of those who buy the food, cook and serve it. This must be done by the authorities. Volunteer workers are good until the professional workers can be found to take hold. This is no play job, but a serious, laborious responsibility.

A good school kitchen and lunchroom should be part of every school plan. Now that we carry children long distances to central schools, send them on cars and buses to outlying schools, this service is imperative. I don't believe in cold sandwiches for steady diet for school children's lunches. They need hot soup, variety of vegetables, simple and wholesome desserts. They should not be left to the mercy of the corner candy store.

Good feeding will raise the quality of the work and conduct of school children and save many a seat in the reform school.
Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of their children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

Fables and Famous Poems

Latin often is called "a dead language," because there is no nation nowadays which uses it in everyday speech. Yet it is not really dead—it lives in its children. The people of France, Spain, Portugal, Italy and Rumania speak languages which grew out of Latin. The English language is not the same kind of a child, but it contains thousands and thousands of words with Latin roots. English grew out of several languages, coming chiefly from German, Latin and French.

The poet Kalidasa at work. Sanskrit holds much the same place as Latin, but goes farther back in history. It was either the mother of Latin or a close relative of the mother. It also is related to the German language, and to Greek.

For thousands of years, Sanskrit has been the sacred language of India. Early Hindu books were written in Sanskrit.

There is good reason to believe that many of our famous fables and fairy stories came from Sanskrit. Most of us know such fables as those about the Lion and the Mouse, the Fox and the Grapes. An old Greek named Aesop has been given credit for making them up, but it seems almost certain that some of them, at least, came from India. These stories have been found written down in the ancient Sanskrit language.

India seems also to have been the place where many of the "Arabian Nights" stories were invented. These stories have other titles, including "The Thousand and One Nights." The Arabs of 1,000 years ago traveled widely. They heard odd tales, and put them together. Persia and India seem to have supplied most of the "Arabian Nights." It is quite likely that we should never have heard of Aladdin and His Wonderful Lamp, or of Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves if it had not been for the story-makers of olden India.

Poets of India have produced some of the world's great poems. Greatest of all Hindu poems is the "Ramayana." It contains 48,000 lines and tells seven Sanskrit books.

The "Ramayana" tells the life of Rama, a mighty hero of Indian lore. It tells how he fell in love with the lovely Sita, and married her. One important Hindu poet was named Kalidasa, and lived about 1,500 years ago. He wrote the "Cloud Messenger." The hero of this poem was in the sky, and used a cloud to take a message to his beloved on earth.

Reynolds Wants To be Relieved Of Chairmanship

Green Bay Man Will Leave Leadership of Progressive Party

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison—John W. Reynolds of Green Bay, veteran Progressive leader and since last summer chairman of the party's state central committee, has indicated that he desires to resign his party chairmanship, it was learned from Progressive headquarters here today.

Reynolds' resignation has not been submitted in a formal manner, it was reported, but he has indicated a definite desire to retire from the active direction of the party's affairs, recalling that he accepted the job last summer with the understanding that he was to act only for the duration of the fall campaign.

Capitol Progressive leaders could not predict when Reynolds' resignation will be acted upon, or when the next meeting of the Progressive committee will be held.

Party activities have been few since the election, and with Phil LaFollette in Europe, it is not expected that any action will be taken until his return.

One source highly-placed in the party reported that a plan is under consideration to effect a party reorganization which would place a permanent, paid and full-time secretary in charge of state headquarters here. E. M. Rowlands, Reynolds' predecessor as party chairman, was mentioned for that job, but Rowlands is currently in Washington, supposedly looking for a New Deal job.

Capitol gossip this week said that Rowlands was to be placed with either the new wages and hours administration, or with the social security board. The latter agency is headed by A. J. Altmyer, formerly of the industrial commission, and a native of DePere.

Dairy Group Has Annual Meeting

About 100 Calumet County Holstein-Friesian Breeders at Gathering

Forest Junction—Alfred Fyksen, Harry Schnell and Leonard Seybold, together with Gilbert Hipke, New Holstein, and T. Henry Weeks, Chilton, were named as the board of directors of the Calumet County Holstein-Friesian Breeders' association at the annual meeting of that organization at Chilton Tuesday evening. Mr. Seybold, local dairyman, has been secretary of the association for several years.

About fifteen local dairymen were numbered among the approximately 100 Calumet county breeders at the meeting, which heard Robert Gelfer, fieldman of the National Holstein-Friesian association, discuss the milk situation in the country, and Dr. C. F. Vande Sand, Kiel veterinarian, discuss Bang's disease and abortion. A resolution was passed by the meeting requesting the assemblyman and senator from this district to vote in favor of an appropriation for Bang's disease indemnity.

To represent the county group at the annual meeting of the state Holstein-Friesian breeders at Columbus, Wis., on Thursday and Friday this week, T. Henry Weeks, Frank Kloehn, Alfred Fyksen and Leonard Seybold were named as delegates, with Edwin Seybold, Walter Meiselwitz, Gilbert Hipke and Harry Schnell as alternates. County Holstein-Friesian events which are being planned in consequence of arrangements made Tuesday evening are an annual banquet tentatively set for March 30, and the third annual black and white day some time during the latter part of May. It was also voted to sponsor the Friendly Valley and the New Holstein 4-H clubs, organized for a little more than a year.

day, succeeding A. L. Stanelle, teacher in the district since 1930, who has resigned. Mr. Stanelle with his family is removing to Milwaukee at the close of this month, where he will complete a course in chemistry. Miss Beach, who had not been teaching this term, had been formerly stationed at a rural school near St. John.

'ALGIERS' NOW SHOWING AT ELITE

Handsome Charles Boyer has his most romantic role as a lovable fugitive in Walter Wanger's "Algiers," the colorful adventurous romance that stars him opposite Hollywood's two most glamorous newcomers, Sigrid Gurie and Hedy Lamarr at the Elite Theatre today and Friday. "Algiers" casts the dark-eyed screen lover as Pepe le Moko, devil-may-care international jewel thief, who takes refuge from the French police by living in the Casbah, the mysterious native quarter of Algiers where the law dare not intrude.

Here Pepe le Moko rules as king, idol of the strange, exotic women of the quarter, commander of the men, and beloved by everyone for his handsome, smiling face and high, adventurous heart.

mail. Only, occasionally, it came through quickly. When she saw the familiar writing, the mauve stamps, her heart moved with excitement. She smiled. But she took off her coat and hat, unhurriedly, closed the door and sat beside the fire. She tore the letter open. But as she read, the smile left her lips. An angry flush rose in Miss Mason's withered cheek. She stiffened resentfully.

"The blind fool!" the words snapped themselves out. She rustled over to the next flimsy page of fact flowing, girlish writing angrily. The child was miserable! Having the time of her life on the surface, with all this gaiety, till she was worn out. But suffering secretly. She was swayed by the agony of first love, and aching with disillusion. She was tormented by doubts in her own values, by dread of Peter's departure. Marriage indeed! She was eighteen. There was no need. Pat was criminally insensitive, as he always had been. He was trying to persuade the girl to violate both body and soul. To follow his head, instead of her heart. With Peter gone she might give in. But with Peter gone there was no point in her spending her life in Burma.

"If only I could come home with him, away from it all, Auntie, and wait till I've seen this man again, I might feel differently about it."

Free! But, of course, it is all so flimsy. Probably I'm just a fool; perhaps he never cared at all; possibly father is right—

Exasperatedly, Maisie put down the letter. For fully five minutes she sat bolt upright, staring at the fire, thinking. Then she stood up. Determination and resolve set her features grimly. She stalked into the hall, and picked up the telephone.

"Give me cable, please, Elsie," she barked, to her friend at the exchange. "I want to send a cable, deferred rate, to Burma. I hope your mother's rheumatism is better, my dear?"

Elsie assured her that it was. Maisie Mason dictated: "To Petronella Mallone, 34 Bahan Road, Rangoon. Am extremely unwell. Please, return home passage paid, with Peter, if possible. Love, Maisie." (Copyright, 1933.)

Tomorrow: Home again.
